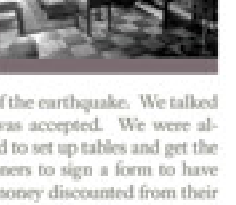
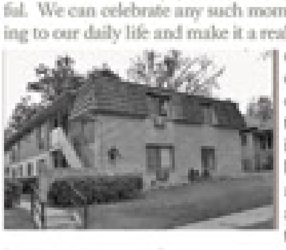
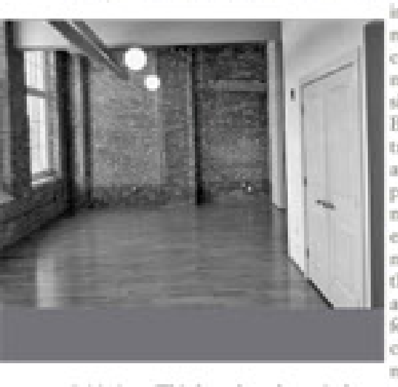
Sunni militants fighting under the banner of Al Qaeda appeared to make gains across Anbar Province on Saturday, using snipers and rocket-propelled grenades in heavy street fighting as they secured nearly full control of Falluja and captured the strategic town Karma. Government forces and the tribal militias fighting with them seemed unable to resist the militants advances. My humble words for my 71st birthday celebration on 3 Kings Day. i've been asked many times how i celebrate my birthday. Since i celebrate every day i wake up alive that for me is the best way i can answer the question regarding the celebration of my birthday. At my age i believe i've lived much longer than i had expected to live. And that's an excellent reason why i should celebrate every day i wake up, look up at the sky to see if there are stars or the moon out and feel the palpitation of my heart to confirm that i'm alive for real. The reaction to my allergies can make me aware that i'm alive, but that's something i don't really like to use because it can affect my desire to celebrate life.

i believe we should celebrate every day just for having awoken. When i've this idea with people they have question it. My response is that we should pay attention to the relativity of the human destiny. Because it doesn't matter how miserable one feels and how bad one thinks conditions are, the fact remains one is alive. And when one feels miserable all one has to do is to look around and one will see another person in worse conditions doing what might look impossible and facing the challenge without complaining. If one feels miserable because he or she lost an eye the person he or she sees dealing with the challenge that seems impossible is totally blind. That's why we should always take into consideration the relativity of the human destiny. When we start a new year or the calendar is telling us a new year has started we should look at it as a chance to complete what we have not been able to accomplish in the past. When we face a crisis we should look at it as an opportunity to deal with it and to find a solution. It doesn't matter where we are. For example, when the earthquake devastated Mexico City and there was a major crisis we came up with the idea to raise funds from the prison population in order to give a hand to the victims of the earthquake. We talked to the staff and the idea was accepted. We were allowed to set up tables and get the prisoners to sign a form to have the money discounted from their funds. Within two hours we had raised over five thousand dollars. At first we had no idea how to help the victims. But after discussing the issue we were able to come up with a solution. We were able to do what for others seemed impossible. Celebrate life and not the commodification of it. We can share and enjoy the act of and make it meaningful. We can celebrate any such moment and give meaning to our daily life and make it a real important cultural event. Life is an act of giving and receiving. But when the sharing of gifts is commodified it becomes another act of consumerism and our culture is the one that suffers its consequences. Any moment we celebrate our culture we are helping to pass it on to future generations and to strengthened it. But if we allow it to become an act of consumerism we are contributing to its vulgarization and its demise. Let's celebrate 3 pass it on to future generations and to strengthened it. But if we allow it to become an act of consumerism we are contributing to its vulgarization and its demise. Let's celebrate 3 Kings Day and enjoy it to the utmost. If we believe a better and more just world is possible, we don't have to go to a far away place in the globe to make our contribution to such a lofty cause. We can do it right where we live. But we have to be willing to roll up our sleeves and do the hard work. Words are important, but it's the work that bears fruits. And if we learn one lesson in life that's worthwhile holding on and passing it on is that the only thing that's impossible is that that doesn't get done. It was Madeba who said that any problem us humans create have a solution. If there is a poverty problem it can be solved if we tackle it. Let's emulate Madeba's example. Let's dare to struggle. let's dare to win. Talk the talk and walk the walk. i leave you with a big hug with much love. Take care, abrazos, Oscar Lopez Rivera Anarchism is part of a broader range of libertarian socialist thought and action that includes the practical achievements of revolutionary Spain in 1936; reaches further to worker-owned enterprises spreading today in the American rust belt, in northern Mexico, in Egypt, and many other countries, most extensively in the Basque country in Spain; and encompasses the many cooperative movements around the world and a good part of feminist and civil and human rights initiatives. This broad tendency in human development seeks to identify structures of hierarchy, authority and domination that constrain human development, and then subject them to a very reasonable challenge: Justify yourself. A former Columbia, Illinois resident pled guilty on January 10, 2014, to a two-count indictment charging him, in count one, with receipt of visual depictions of minors engaged in sexually explicit conduct, in violation of Title 18, United States Code, Section 2252(a)(2); and, in count two, with possession of visual depictions of minors engaged in sexually explicit conduct, in violation of Title 18, United States Code, Section 2252(a)(4)(B), the United States Attorney for the Southern District of Illinois, Stephen R. Wigginton, announced today. Neil E. Purdy, 29, formerly of Columbia, Illinois, faces a term of imprisonment of not less than five but not more than 20 years, a fine up to $250,000, and a term of supervised release of five years to life on count one; and a term of imprisonment of not more than 10 years, a fine up to $250,000, and a term of supervised release of five years to life on count two. In addition, upon his release from prison, Purdy must register as a sex offender. Sentencing is scheduled for May 16, 2014, in East St. Louis, Illinois. Purdy has been held without bond since his initial appearance on April 26, 2013.







The investigation began on February 7, 2012, when an individual contacted the Columbia Police Department to report that the defendant molested his/her 14-year-old child. He/she also told the Columbia police that he/she saw the defendant "Google" the phrase, "where can I find really young porn." He/she said that, when he/she asked the defendant, "How long have you had this little problem?" Purdy responded, "About three years." On February 16, 2012, Purdy, a member of the U.S. Navy Reserve with top secret clearance, admitted to Columbia the number of hunger strikers in Guantanamo has doubled since the final set of official figures was released by the US authorities on December 2 2013. The report, compiled by human rights charity Reprieve, uses prisoner testimony to reveal that 33 men detained in Guantanamo are on hunger strike, with 16 being force fed. The Joint Task Force at Guantanamo, which runs the prison, announced in December of 2013 that they would no longer release official figures of those on hunger strike because they did not want to 'further their protests'. The report also reveals that authorities at the prison are punishing those on hunger strike by sending them to the strictest of the camps, "Camp V Echo". One detainee described his experiences there to his lawyer at Reprieve: "My cell in the dreadful Camp V Echo is constructed in a strange manner. It is designed to torture the person who is held there. All the surfaces made of steel. The bed is steel. The walls are steel. The floor is steel. The ceiling is steel. There is no toilet, but the hole in the ground is made of steel." British resident Shaker Aamer, who remains imprisoned despite having been cleared by both the Bush and Obama administrations, said: "[I was] strapped to the bed for 24 hours except to use the toilet. The [force-feeding] tube was in 24 hours a day. We would be fed for 30-40 minutes each time, with Ensure cans, two cans, three times a day. Some of the prisoners became zombies, as if they were already dead. I dropped weight to 130 pounds. I told the doctors, 'I want to die peacefully. I want no intervention.' But they refused this." Mr Aamer's British wife and four British children, the youngest of whom he has never met, live in London. British Prime Minister David Cameron has raised his case directly with President Obama, yet Mr Aamer remains imprisoned. There is an ongoing police investigation into Mr Aamer's treatment at the hands of British and US officials. 155 men are still detained in Guantanamo Bay, 77 of who have been cleared for release. Yesterday (Saturday) marked the twelfth anniversary of the first arrival of prisoners at the detention camp. Of the 779 men known to have been held there 624 have been released. More prisoners have died than have been put on trial. In an endlessly mutating world of media forms, scholars, creative practitioners and professionals in a variety of fields need to understand the ways in which media transforms and dissolves boundaries among disciplines and creates new forms of knowledge and cultural production. The Master of Arts (M.A.) in Media Studies provides students with the conceptual and practical tools necessary to prepare themselves to engage some of the fundamental challenges and complexities of our times. The program interrogates the social, practical, economic, political and theoretical stakes of mediation considered in the widest possible sense, encompassing more traditional approaches to the study of media (print, film, photography, audio and television), in conjunction with approaches that address the massive shifts produced by the computer and internet including gaming and social media Students will benefit from an academic environment shaped not only by theorists and critics, but also by distinguished practitioners of the forms being studied. Students study and work among theorists, artists and designers and are taught by faculty-practitioners. Our courses are small, intensive, seminars taught exclusively by professors. The program is 30 credits and can be completed in threesemesters. Among the core requirements are (1) six credit hours of courses

Meanwhile, parts of the Plains and Deep South will also experience dry winds leading to increased fire risk this weekend. An individual who robbed a bank yesterday morning in Phoenix and who later was shot and killed in an exchange of gunfire with a Phoenix police detective has been identified as the same individual responsible for the attempted bank robbery in Atlanta, the robbery of the BancorpSouth in Tupelo, the shooting of Tupelo Police Officer Joseph Edward Maher, and the murder of Tupelo Police Officer Kevin "Gale" Stauffer. This identification has been made based upon similarities between these bank robberies, including the clothing worn by the bank robber, statements made by the bank robber during the robberies, and the robber's overall modus operandi, supported by other evidence and information collected during the course of this investigation. Additionally, cell phone records obtained via court order indicated that this individual's phone was in Atlanta, Tupelo, and Phoenix when the bank robberies were committed.

Not many people come to Fort McMurray, the notorious Alberta boom town on the edge of one of the world's largest industrial developments, to commune with the great northern woods. Most are here for the overtime, for the paid vacations, for the blue-collar jobs that pay six figures, for the work. This means that all of the bad things you've heard about Fort McMoney are true: the traffic really is murderous, there are liquor stores (many open until 2 a.m.) in every strip mall, and the place has a depressingly large population of desperately lonely guys blowing ridiculously fat paycheques on steroids, tattoos, monster trucks, and peelers. My name is Mr. Richard Blanc, I am the Credit Account Manager with Access Bank Limited Benin Republic in West Africa Region. I have an obscured business Transaction I wish to discuss and handle with you, if only you can give it a little attention. BRIEF DETAIL OF TRANSACTION: It involves moving an Excess Maximum Returned Capital Profit (EMRCP) of 1.2% to any of your Overseas bank account, and commence a standard Investment.

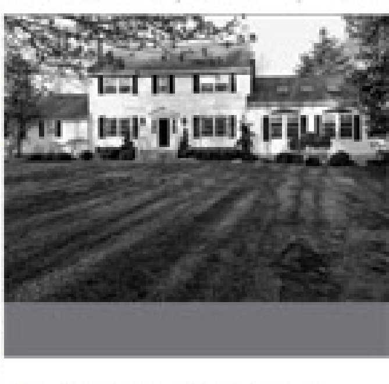
In Access Bank Limited, We have well over 158 Corporate Investors Locally and Internationally, who invested their Capital Funds in our bank, and those Capital Invested Funds are being managed and administered by my office. The Capital Invested Funds has a value of over US$22Billion net. This Value is been used for Trading in Stock Market, Crude Oil business and Lending with Profit Returns. At Every end of year, each Corporate Investor is entitled to receive a 100% Dividend/Interest benefits of any Amount invested . However, Access Bank Limited has a Targeted Capital Profit of 20% in every year, but in the year 2012, my office made an over targeted profit to the tune of 21.2% which 20% targeted profit was reported and submitted to the management. Since 2012 i have deposited and placed the over-accrude profit of 1.2% which has value of US$1.5Million in a suspense account until date.



With all due respect, I seek your concept and permission to present you to our bank as one of our bank foreign investors who has not receive his 2012 dividend benefit, so that our bank will transfer this over maximum profit of 1.2% (US$1.5Million) to your nominated bank account, for both of us to share among ourselves. Note, after handling this project successfully, you will get 50% of the total fund and 50% for me.

The South African sugar giant Illovo has 6159 hectares of sugarcane in Malawi, where it is a monopoly with an annual production of 2.8 million metric tonnes of sugar. The company denies persistent claims that it has grabbed land from smallholder farmers "Everybody loves Illovo" is the common slogan emblazoned on millions of sugar packets sold daily by Illovo Sugar (Malawi) Limited, the country's sole producer. However, for subsistence farmers at Kachibudi, Mwale, Kazilira and Kalimakhola at Dwangwa about 250 kilometres from Malawi's Capital City, Lilongwe, the slogan is a bitter-sweet fallacy. "I was dispossessed of my two and half hectares - my only source of livelihood," said farmer Joseph Mwale. "Now, I am suffering because I have to work in other people's farms to make ends meet." At 38, Mwale looks lost and confused as he narrates details of the evictions. There is fear, hatred and resignation that Malawi's justice system, and the overall structure of land administration favours the rich at the expense of the poor. Tammy Dickinson, United States Attorney for the Western District of Missouri, announced that a Nixa, Missouri man was sentenced in federal court today for receiving and distributing child pornography over the Internet. Charles Williams, 28, of Nixa, was sentenced by U.S. District Judge Brian C. Wimes to 10 years and 10 months in federal prison without parole. Williams, who pleaded guilty on August 7, 2013, admitted that he used peer-to-peer file-sharing programs on two laptop computers to download and distribute dozens of videos and photos of child pornography over the Internet from April 9 to September 27, 2011.

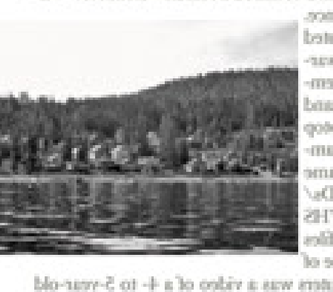
A Nixa police officer used a peer-to-peer file-sharing program to connect to Williams' computer over the Internet. The officer located child pornography on the computer and obtained a search warrant for Williams' residence. Officers executed the search warrant on September 27, 2011 and seized two laptop computers, two cameras, two videogame consoles, 115 CDs/DVDs, and a VHS tape. Among the files discovered on one of the laptop computers was a video of a 4- to 5-year-old child being raped by an adult. Williams was arrested on September 27, 2011.



Investigators conducted an examination of Williams' computers and found 52 incomplete or partially downloaded videos of child pornography, 29 saved videos of child pornography, eight videos of child pornography in the recycle bin, and 13 images of child pornography.

This case was prosecuted by Assistant U.S. Attorney Randall D. Eggert. It was investigated by the FBI and the Nixa Police Department. Last week, the Justice Department convened hearings under the Prison Rape Elimination Act to examine the prevalence of rape and sexual abuse in the nation's prisons and juvenile detention centers. As we've reported, the department has found alarming rates of abuse by staff on youngsters in custody. In a 2013 survey of more than 8,700 juveniles housed in 326 facilities across the country, 8 percent said they experienced sex abuse at the hands of the staff supervising them. Twenty percent of those who said they were victimized by staff said it happened on more than 10 occasions. But perhaps the most surprising finding: Nine out of 10 victims were males abused by female staffers. The prison rape elimination legislation first passed in 2003, but it then took the Justice Department nearly 10 years to study the issue and release rules for prisons and juvenile detention centers to implement. Two of the rarest items in the sale were the Mafia Island 1915 hand stamped 1r and 3r mint issues. Mafia Island is part of the Tanzanian Zanzibar Archipelago. Under the treaty of 1890 Zanzibar allowed Germany to take control of the island when Germany purportedly paid Sultan Sayyid Ali bin Said al-Said of Oman 4 million German marks for it, plus a section of the mainland. In January 1915, during the First World War, Mafia Island was taken by the British and used to launch an attack on the Imperial German Navy light cruiser, Knigsberg. The British restored the postal facilities immediately after taking control and used the Foreign Post Offices. Dear Friend, I have a proposal for you, this however is not mandatory nor will I in any manner compel you to honour the content against your will. I am Mr. Wilfred Kabore; I work with a bank (one of the leading banks in Africa ). Here in this bank exists a dormant account for the past 13 years which belongs to an Australian nationality who is now late, by name Mr. Christian Eich the account owner an engineer who ran Carmaker BMW's Museum, his wife and two children and his wife's parents were also among the victims in a plane crash of Alaska airlines flight number AF4590 which crashed on 31st July, 2000.When I discovered that there had been no deposits or withdrawals from this account for this long period, I decided to carry out a system investigation and discovered that none of the family members or relations of the late person is aware of this account. Now I want an account overseas where the bank will transfer this fund. Thereafter, I will destroy all related documents to this account. It is a careful network and for the past eleven months I have worked out everything to ensure a hitch-free operation. The amount plus all the accumulated interest is the sum of (US$11.8Million,) Eleven Million Eight Hundred Thousand Dollars only. Now my questions are:- 1. Can you handle this project?

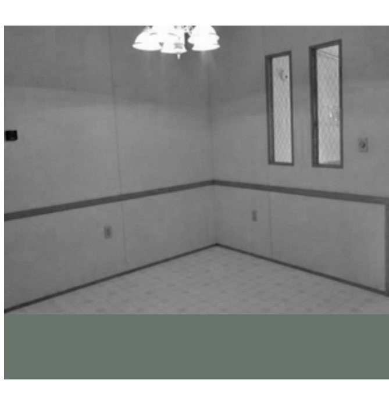
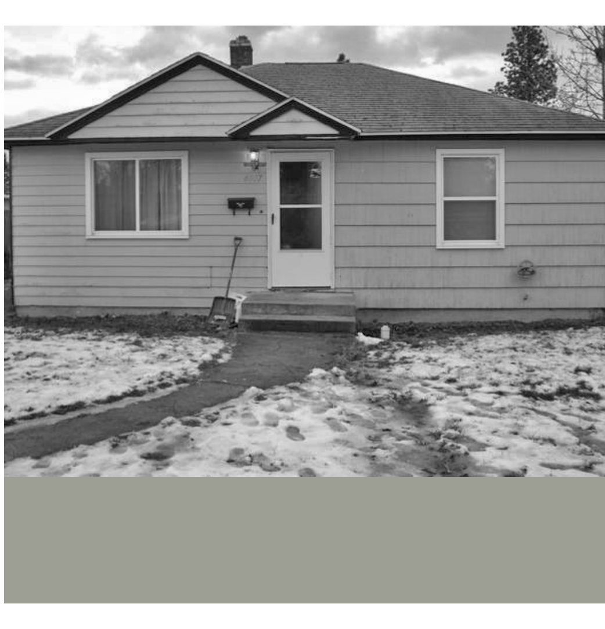
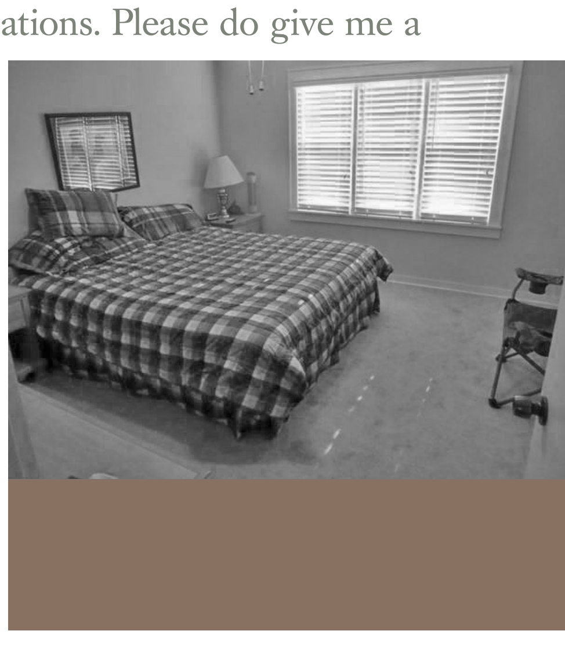
2. Can I give you this trust? 3. What will be your commission if you can facilitate the movement of this fund to your account? As I intend giving you 40% of the total amount. Consider these and get back to me as soon as possible with your full names, private telephone, Mobile and fax numbers, corresponding postal address, etc.

As I sat on my bed, tears of rage flowing, remembering my childhood, my anger kept building and building, and I went to my car, got the 9 mm., and walked to his room, peeked in, and he was asleep. I walked about 2 steps in the door, and screamed, and shut my eyes, when I heard him move, I started firing. When I opened my eyes again, I freaked! I grabbed what cassings (sic) I saw, and threw them into the bushes, grabbed the gun, and went to town. I saw Joey, told him to hide the gun, and he said he'd take it to his spot, which I knew from when I'd sell him stuff, and went and told mom that dad was dead, and before her terry eyes could let loose I ran out of the hospital, and headed for the house, I was so confused. I enjoy nature, seeing the stars at night, listening to the sounds of nature, being near the water, swimming, as I love the ocean and sea, I am very understanding,open minded with a heart of forgiving,loving and caring with sense of humor, hard working with cheerful character ,honest,sincere,kind, warm and intelligent with good look. I was raised with a strike Christian background and taught from a young age to always respect myself and other people. I still maintains this value wherever I goes. I never speak negatively about people, I take less and listen more to people and does not jump into other people's affairs. I am a great giver when i have it i give,because I so much believes in the Multiplied returns. I have fully decided to be a role Model to my children and a good, loving and caring wife to my wife ,But I doesnt want to mess myself with the wrong woman,Basically I decided to settle with a very nice understanding loving and caring woman. I'm seeking a woman (open, kind, serious, confident, cheerful, responsible) who is ready for marriage. I don't play games and don't want to waste my time and the time of other people,I'm a man who has a very strong desire for a serious relationship. I have been Hurt before and will not allow that to happen to me again,thats why i took my time to look for my LoveLife. It's so great to be together and love and I hope, someday we'll meet and we will be happy in our souls and hearts! An open, kind, serious, confident, cheerful, responsible woman, who is ready for marriage. I hope to create a happy, cosy, secure marriage with a nice woman, I would love to have a loving family in a nice house where everyone feels good to come home to. I think a man must take care of her wife and children (family) first,I have a dream to meet the person with whom it is possible to live my life. i will like you to e-mail me on email me.alex_lee2@yahoo.co.za... so that we can chat .. And you could add me on yahoo messenger as well on this.alex_lee2 . Hope you will not mind my ascent as my country is not English speaking country. As soon as i get your replied i will email my pictures to you Thank. thank you and God bless you.. Regards. Alex lee Hundreds of protesters marched past riot police in Albuquerque on Sunday, days after a YouTube video emerged threatening retaliation for a recent deadly police shooting. The video, which bore the logo of the computer hacking collective Anonymous, warned of a cyberattack on city websites and called for the protest march. Albuquerque police said their site had been breached early Sunday afternoon and remained down hours later. Investigators had not uncovered the source of the hack, police spokesman Simon Drobik said. "We can confirm that the website disruption is due to a cyberattack," he said. The site was not "connected to any critical services" and IT personnel are working on the problem, Drobik said. The demonstrators, meanwhile, arrived at Civic Plaza holding signs protesting recent police shootings, and activists called on various city officials to resign. Authorities announced over a loudspeaker that the protest was an unlawful assembly. Demonstrators, meanwhile, chanted, "no justice, no peace!" Alexander Siderits, 23, said he was protesting because he was "fed up" with how police treat citizens. "It has reached a boiling point," he said, "and people just can't take it anymore." Albuquerque police have been involved in 37 shootings, 23 of them fatal since 2010. Critics say that's far too many for a department serving a city of about 555,000.



In the grounds of the Shoin Shrine in Hagi, Yamaguchi, is the Yoshida Shoin History Museum. A series of life-size tableaux depicts events from his life, including his attempt to leave Japan on Perrys' "Black Ship" There is no information available in English, and unless you are a die-hard Shoin buff it is probably not worth visiting. Dear: Friend, I am Mr. Robert McLauren, the Auditor General, Santander Bank, United Kingdom. In the course of my auditing, I discovered a floating fund in an account, which was opened in 1990 belonging to a dead foreigner who died in 1999. I have been able to contact the Late account holder's attorney; but every effort made to track any member of his family or next of kin has since failed hence I got in contact with you to stand as his next of kin since you bear the same last name. He died leaving no heir or a will. Since his attorney is aware, you will contact his attorney since he has all the legal documents backing the fund. My intention is to transfer this sum of Five Million, Five Hundred Thousand United States Dollars only, in the aforementioned account to a safe account overseas. I am therefore proposing that you quietly partner with me and provide an account or set up a new one that will serve the purpose of receiving this fund. For your assistance in this venture, I am ready to part with a good percentage of the entire funds. We will share the funds in the proportion of 60% for you, 10% for the attorney, 20% for me and 10% will be donated to Charitable Organizations. After going through the deceased person's records and files, I discovered that: Charitable Organizations. After going through the deceased person's records and files, I discovered that:





(1) No one has operated this account since 1999. (2) He died without an heir; hence the money has been floating. (3) No other person knows about this account apart from the attorney and there was no known beneficiary. That is why every process has to go through the attorney. If I do not remit this money urgently, it would be forfeited and subsequently converted to company's funds, which will benefit only the directors of my firm. This money can be approved to you legally as with all the necessary documentary approvals in your name. However, you would be required to show some proof of claim, which the attorney will provide you with and also guide you on how to make your applications. Please do give me a reply so that I can send you detailed information on the modalities of my proposition. I completely trust you to keep this proposition absolutely confidential, I look forward to your prompt response. Best Regards, Mr. Robert McLauren Auditor General, Santander Bank, London, United Kingdom. robertmclauren@gmail.com The retired autoworker who unknowingly bought stolen paintings worth millions of euros by Paul Gauguin and Pierre Bonnard and hung them in his kitchen for 40 years said he was "proud" of his taste in art. "As a simple factory worker, I am proud of having been able to appreciate and buy two masterpieces even though I did not know what they were," the 70-year-old Italian man was quoted by the La Stampa daily as saying Thursday. "What makes me most happy is having had the pleasure of living with them for so long," the pensioner, who said he wished to remain anonymous out of concern "because of the amount of money involved", was quoted as saying. Italy's culture ministry showed off the paintings on Wednesday and revealed that they had been stolen from a London home in 1970 and were then found abandoned on an Italian train and sold off at auction as lost items. The Fiat factory worker bought them in 1975, putting them in his home in Turin at the time. The Master's Degree in Digital Arts aims to contribute to the formation of audiovisual professionals in different aspects of creative production in the field of interactive audiovisual communication. Goal 1: To approach both theoretically and experimentally the creative and technical aspects of digital media and their role in cultural production.

Goal 2: To promote expression through information and communication technologies which lead to new visual, musical and interactive art forms. Goal 3: To provide analytic models and tools to explore specific languages induced by digital media and particularly, interactive audiovisual communication and networking. Goal 4: Master the techniques for generating, processing and editing of images and sounds, and various software environments for authoring visual, musical and interactive compositions.

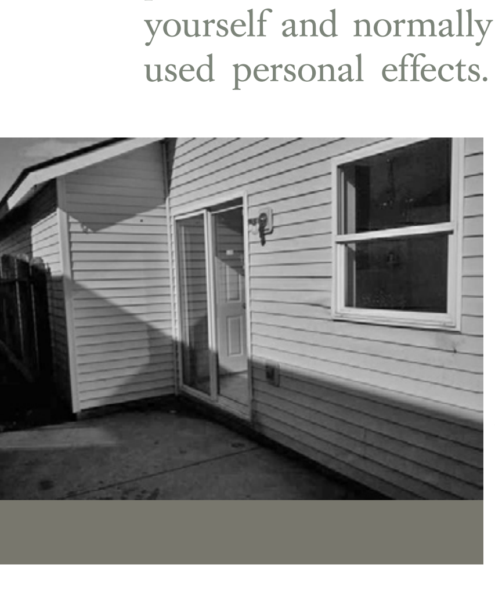
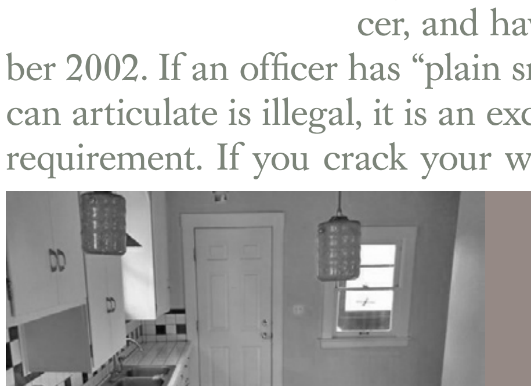
Goal 5: To understand and to experiment with code especially as applied to generative, algorithmic and procedural aspects of computer programming as a form of creative writing, Goal 6: Encourage the use of digital media for the production of innovative and significant works. Goal 7: To train students in fundamental change at the formal, conceptual, contextual, relational and narrative levels of audiovisual culture that occur with the introduction of electronic and digital media. Goal 8: Encourage and promote new forms of human-computer interaction, and the creation of physical, tangible, embedded and embodied interfaces. Goal 9: To promote contemporary artistic practices using digital technologies to express aesthetic and critical forms of discourse. The emphasis is on the arts, beyond the hegemonic discourse on media and digital culture. Hi my friend Jaydin I am beautiful, easy-going and fun. I work as a manager and I love my job. But it is so sad to come home in the evening and to know that there is noone there to wait for me. I want to share my life with a nice and caring man, I dream of cosy home, that I will fill with atmosphere of love and care http://www.wendy.kr.ua I want to wait for my husband returning from work in the evening and I would wait for him with a delicious dinner, we would discuss events of the day and enjoy every moment we spend together. Let me hear from you Sveetlana Ocean rates are based upon the cubic space in the ocean container that the cargo occupies with the cost varying, depending upon the country and city destination.

We ask that your boxes be at least 3 cubic feet in size and that you use as many of the same size boxes as possible. These boxes will stack and stow evenly on a standard ocean shipping pallet. Although this is the best and most cost effective method, irregular box sizes can be accommodated but at slightly higher shipping costs. Our rate covers warehouse receiving, tallying, loading into container, documentation and ocean transport. These costs are included in your box rate; however, there will be local destination/delivery charges upon warehouse release per custom of the port. This charge can either be prepaid or collected upon delivery. It is also important to understand that customs clearance, duties and taxes, if any, are the obligation of the receiving consignee; however, in most countries it is possible to clear customs yourself and normally duty is not levied on your own used personal effects. We cannot be held responsible for customs entry, but our delivery agent can offer this service should you choose.



Lastly, minimum charges are standard in the ocean transport industry and warehousing facilities. We attempt to keep these as low as possible and they are indicated in the country rates. Tim Fry, I am currently a police officer, and have been since December 2002. If an officer has “plain smell” of something he can articulate is illegal, it is an exception to the warrant requirement.



If you crack your window and stick your license, registration, and insurance through that crack, the police probably can’t smell smells from inside your vehicle. The officer can then order you out of the vehicle (he doesn’t need a reason), but if the “smell” isn’t coming from your person, and you lock your car and close the door quickly behind you, the officer may never gain access to the “smells”.

When an officer says “you’re free to go” during a traffic stop, you no longer have to listen to him or cooperate with him in any way. If an officer says, “You’re free to go, but do you mind if I ask: ‘Is there anything in your vehicle that shouldn’t be there?’”, one good way to respond is, “Have a nice day officer”, and drive away. If you lie to an officer, it could be considered anything from “obstructing and delaying him in his duties” to being an accomplice or accessory to a crime. Officers are free to lie to you with impunity. That unless you broke the law, you probably have the right to just walk away (and you probably should). I teach my kids and their friends that if a cop walks up to them and starts asking them questions, the only thing that should be coming out of their mouth is, “Am I detained or am I free to go?” If they’re free to go they’re to walk away and, when out of earshot, call me immediately. If they’re detained they’re only allowed to identify themselves and demand to talk to me. That in the majority of states you can record anyone (including police) in public, and without their permission. Likewise, when not in public you can record any interaction you’re personally involved in (in most states; check your local laws). On a traffic stop the police have the right to order any occupant in or out of a vehicle, but you don’t have to give the police the opportunity to enter your car.

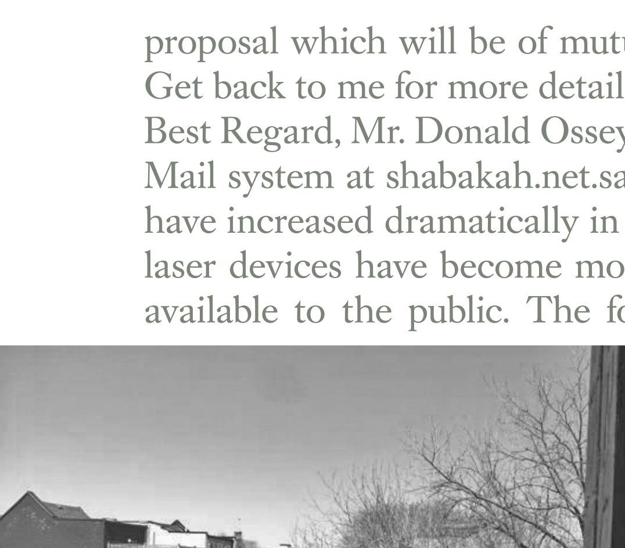
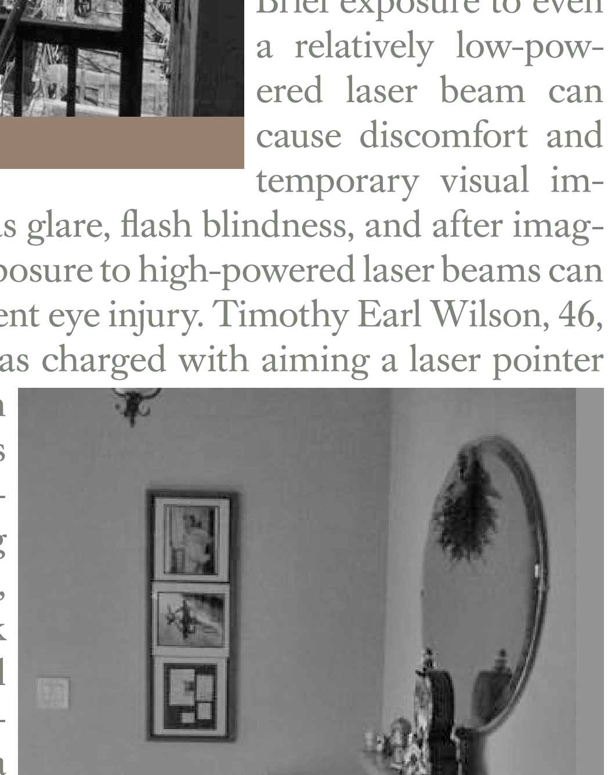
Hello My name is Donald Ossey the principal treasury officer with one of the prime banks in Cote d’Ivoire. Sent via the KillerWebMail system at shabakah.net.sa Reports of laser attacks have increased dramatically in recent years as powerful laser devices have become more affordable and widely available to the public.



The focused beams of a laser remain powerful at extended viewing distances and can expose pilots and their crew members and passengers to radiation levels above those considered to be flight safe. Brief exposure to even a relatively low-powered laser beam can cause discomfort and temporary visual impairments such as glare, flash blindness, and after images. Prolonged exposure to high-powered laser beams can result in permanent eye injury.



Timothy Earl Wilson, 46, of Bakersfield, was charged with aiming a laser pointer at Air-1, a Kern County Sheriff’s Office helicopter. According to court records, Air-1 was struck by a powerful green laser multiple times. As a result of the laser strikes, the tactical flight officer experienced a feeling of pressure, throbbing, and irritation in his eyes that lasted 30 minutes, and the flight crew was forced to divert attention away from routine patrol Notice of appearance, Hereby you are notified that you have been scheduled to appear for your hearing that will take place in the court of Spokane in June 02, 2014 at 11:30 am. of court The gut microbiota is responsible for many aspects of human health and nutrition, but most studies have focused on “western” populations. An international collaboration of researchers, including researchers of the Max Planck Institute for Evolutionary Anthropology in Leipzig, Germany, has for the first time analysed the gut microbiota of a modern hunter-gatherer community, the Hadza of Tanzania. The results of this work show that Hadza harbour a unique microbial profile with features yet unseen in any other human group, supporting the notion that Hadza gut bacteria play an essential role in adaptation to a foraging subsistence pattern. The study further shows how gut microbiota may have helped our ancestors adapt and survive during the Paleolithic.Dear brethern, I am Mrs. Ruth Smith, A widow to Late Mr. John Smith, I am 73years old, and I am now a new Christian convert, suffering from long time cancer of the ear.

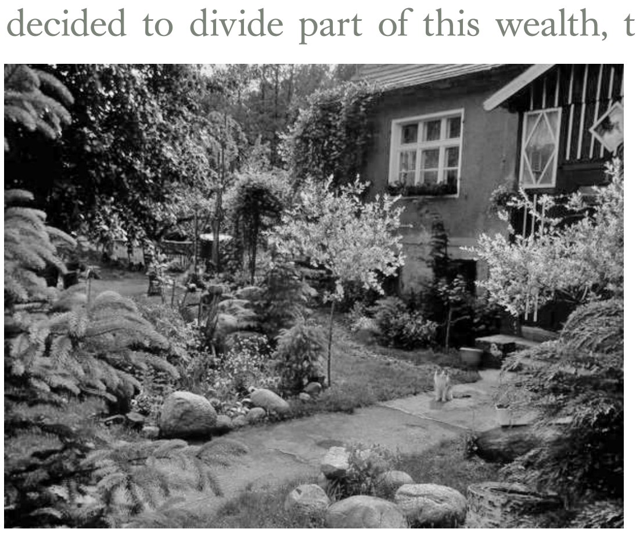
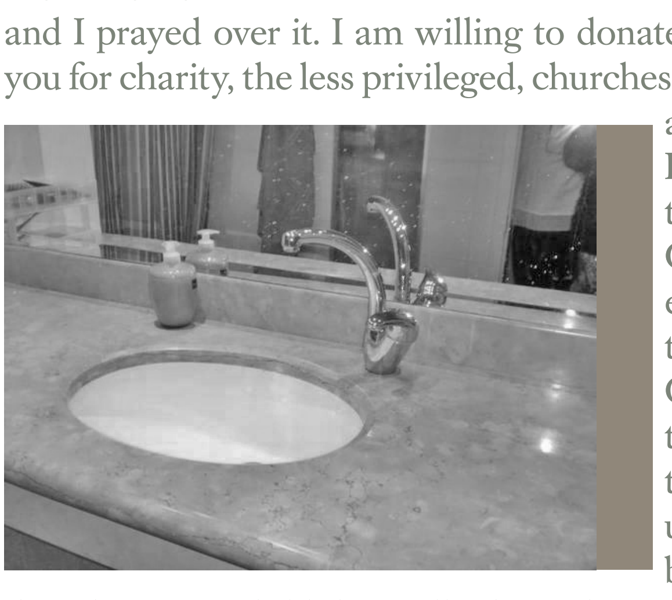
From all indications my condition is really deteriorating and it’s quite obvious that I won’t live long according to my doctors. This is because my cancer stage has gotten to a very bad stage. My late husband was killed during the U.S raid, against terrorism in Afghanistan when he traveled to Afghanistan to monitor a Hospital/a Humanitarian Found at (HHF) he was setting up for the benefit of the Afghan masses as of then; whose majority and 99 percent of them are Muslims/ Islamic scholars and loyalists. During the period of our marriage we couldn^t produce any child.. My late husband was very wealthy and after his death, I inherited all his businesses and wealth, and when I noticed that my condition is not improving rather it gets worsen by the day I decided to divide part of this wealth, to contribute to Charity and the development of the churches in Africa, America , Asia and Europe . I selected you after visiting the internet and I prayed over it.



I am willing to donate the fund to you for charity, the less privileged, churches, orphanages and widows, Propagating the word of God and to ensure that the house of God is maintained. I took this decision upon myself because I don’t have any child that will inherit this money and my husband relatives are not Christians and I don’t want my husband’s hard earned money to be misused by unbelievers.



Because I have come to find out that wealth acquisition without Christ is vanity upon vanity. Please I want you to note that this fund was deposited in a BANK for security purpose. And upon my instruction,my late husbands lawyer will file application to the BANK for the release of the consignment to you. May the Grace of our Lord Jesus Christ, the love of God, and the fellowship of the Holy Spirit be with you and your family. Await Your Urgent Reply(mrsruth_s@yahoo.dk), any delay in your reply will give me room in sourcing for a church, another person or Christian individual for this same purpose.

Yours in Christ, Ruth Smith A Greenville man was sentenced on April 17, 2014, on one count of attempt to access with intent to view visual depictions of minors engaged in sexually explicit conduct, the United States Attorney for the Southern District of Illinois, Stephen R. Wigginton, announced today. Terry L. Adcock, 65, Greenville, Illinois, was sentenced to a term of 30 months in federal prison, to be followed by a 10 year term of supervised release, fined $3,000, and ordered to pay a $100 special assessment.

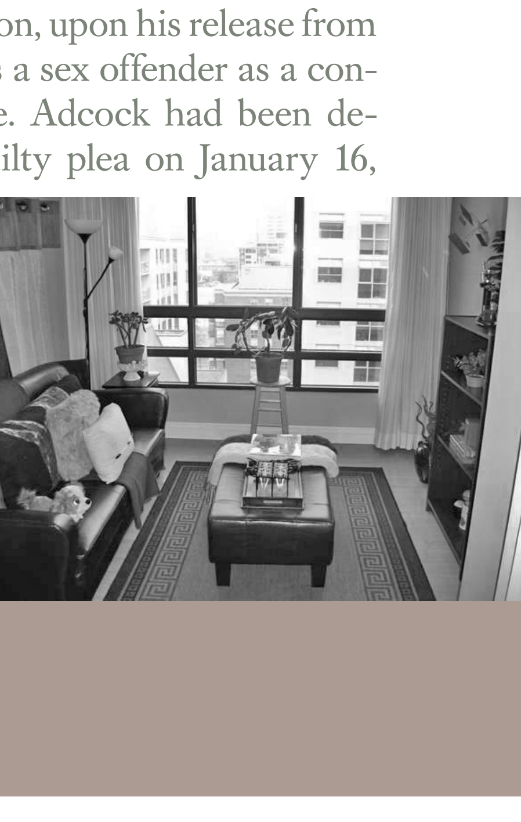
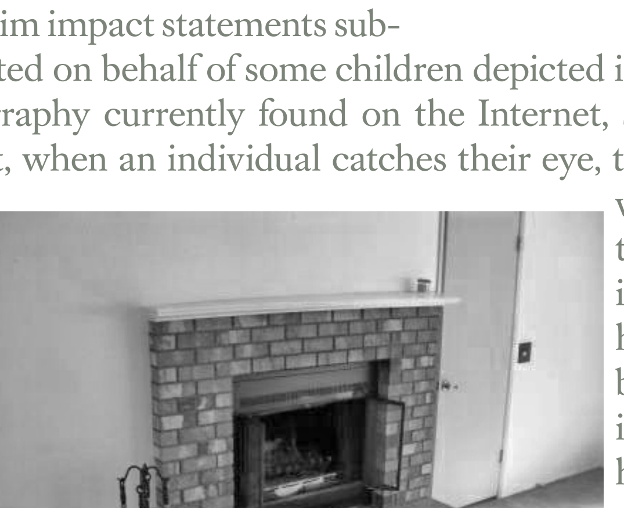
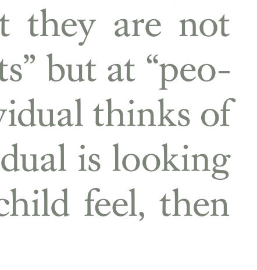
Adcock also forfeited the two computers that were used in the attempt to access the illegal images. In addition, upon his release from prison, Adcock must register as a sex offender as a condition of his supervised release. Adcock had been detained since he entered his guilty plea on January 16, 2014.



Before imposing sentence, Chief Judge David R. Herndon noted that Adcock was charged with a serious offense because child pornography “is not a victimless crime.” He stated that the children contained in these images and/or videos of child pornography suffer from knowing that people are looking at their images and/or videos over and over again. He also noted that, in past victim impact statements submitted on behalf of some children depicted in child pornography currently found on the Internet, some noted that, when an individual catches their eye, they have to wonder if this person is looking at him or her because that individual has seen he or she depicted in one of these images and/or videos depicting their abuse that is on the Internet.



He suggested that individuals who look at child pornography need to think about this. Specifically, he suggested that, maybe when someone has an inclination to look at child pornography, that individual stop to realize that they are not looking at “nothing” or “inanimate objects” but at “people.” He stated that, maybe when an individual thinks of that child as being aware that that individual is looking at that child and how that makes that child feel, then just maybe the inclination to look at child pornography will pass.



The charges resulted from an FBI nationwide investigation that revealed IP addresses that accessed a web forum known to contain links to images and/or videos of visual depictions of minors engaged in sexually explicit conduct. The web forum listed a detailed description of the image and/or video file that a user could link to, with some of the descriptions of the images clearly indicating that the images and/or video vile involved a prepubescent minor. This investigation revealed that, between October and November 2011, an IP address assigned to Defendant Terry Adcock tried to access the web forum on five separate occasions. On December 18, 2012, FBI special agents spoke with Adcock at his residence about the results of the investigation. Adcock admitted that he had been searching for and viewing images of child pornography on the Internet since he bought his first computer approximately 20 years prior and that he was interested in prepubescent girls between the ages of 10 and 12. He said that, by googling a search term commonly associated with child pornography, he would gain access to thousands of websites that contained child pornography, sometimes paying for access to certain websites. Adcock gave consent to the officers to search and seize, among other things, a Gateway desktop computer and a Dell Inspiron laptop computer. Adcock stated that he used these two computers to access and view child pornography.

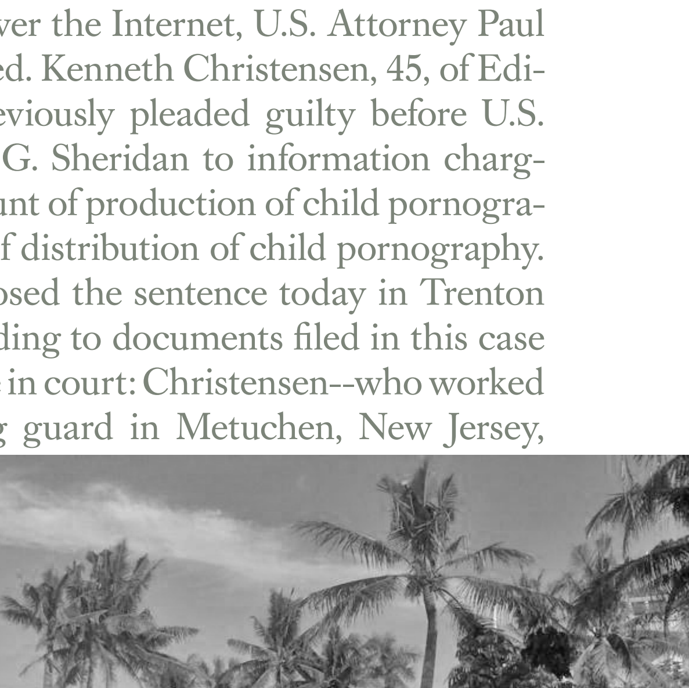
This Abuelita Knowledge has shown up in many ways: in ritual and ceremony, music and dance, shared food, and the slowing down of time. Healing happens through shared tears over cups of tea, at poetry readings surrounded by dozens of other migrants and refugees, and during the time we take to bring our community together for cross-cultural dinners. Reclamation lies in our story-telling circles, in the rituals that call in our ancestors, in the anecdotes and recipes from our homelands. The reconciliation happens with the questions we raise as we connect the dots between our struggles and the care we take in not perpetuating subtle but toxic systemic oppressions.

Rather than coming together in ways that continue to compromise the healing of historical traumas, many of which are still playing out as violent realities for our communities, let’s be more demanding -- more demanding in how we show up for each other, in how we sit through the inconvenient conversations, in how we honor the complexities of our identities. A Middlesex County, New Jersey man who once worked as a school crossing guard was sentenced today to 216 months in prison for taking compromising photographs of a naked child and distributing them and hundreds of other photographs of child sexual abuse over the Internet, U.S. Attorney Paul J. Fishman announced. Kenneth Christensen, 45, of Edison, New Jersey, previously pleaded guilty before U.S. District Judge Peter G. Sheridan to information charging him with one count of production of child pornography and one count of distribution of child pornography. Judge Sheridan imposed the sentence today in Trenton federal court. According to documents filed in this case and statements made in court: Christensen--who worked as a school crossing guard in Metuchen, New Jersey, prior to his arrest--admitted that in 2012, he sent four individuals e-mails containing several hundred images of child pornography, including sadistic and masochistic conduct.



Christensen acknowledged he distributed more than 600 such images. Christensen also admitted that some of the files he distributed were photographs he took himself, including in his own bedroom, of a naked, prepubescent child who was bound in some of the images. In addition to the prison term, Judge Sheridan sentenced Christensen to lifetime supervised release and required him to register as a sex offender.

The Marshall Islands, which was used for 12 years as a testing ground for nuclear bombs by the United States, says the five original nuclear weapon states - U.S., Russia, UK, France and China - are continuously breaching their legal obligations under the 1968 Nuclear Non-Proliferation Treaty (NPT). The lawsuits also contend that all nine nuclear-armed nations are violating customary international law. Around sunrise at 6:15 AM on March 8, 2014 (9:15 AM Malaysia time), several residents on the Maldives island of Huvadhoo reported seeing a very low-flying jumbo jet. The residents provided good detail and described the aircraft as white with red stripes, which is very similar to the colors of MH370. According to some residents, the plane was flying so low they could see the doors on the plane. The residents stated that they sometimes see small seaplanes around the island, but this was the first time they ever saw a jumbo jet. People were coming out of their houses to see what was causing the tremendous noise. The eyewitnesses say that the airplane was traveling in a southeast direction toward Addu, the last and most southern island in the Maldives.

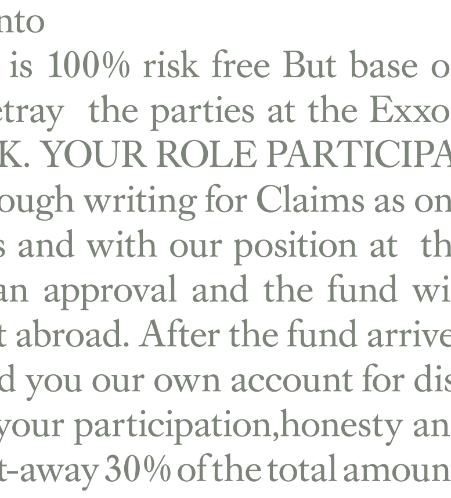
Dockwalkers are trained to engage members of the public and the boating community to adopt clean boating practices. Dockwalkers share clean boating information with boaters and distribute educational materials (boater kits), while visiting marinas, launch ramps, marine supply stores, boat shows and special events (i.e. regattas, opening days, among others). As you realize, "Dockwalker" is only a generic term because you do not necessarily have to "walk the docks" in order to talk to boaters about safety and clean boating practices. The great and only error lies in thinking that a line of flight consists in fleeing from life; the flight into the imaginary, or into art. On the contrary, to flee is to produce the real, to create life, to find a weapon. Five hundred women marched in Abuja yesterday, more than two weeks after female students were kidnapped from their boarding school. More rallies are planned through Monday. At midnight on April 15, 234 girls were kidnapped from their dorm room in Chibok, in northeastern Nigeria, by Islamic militant group Boko Haram. Most have been missing ever since. The separatist terrorism group's name means "Western education is forbidden." Fewer than 50 girls managed to escape their kidnappers, one of whom told the New Yorker the girls at first weren't far from their homes. But now they are believed to be deep in the forest, on the border with Cameroon, and the Nigerian military is struggling to locate them. President Goodluck Jonathan has not addressed the kidnapping directly, and Nigerians are growing frustrated. "There are lots of stories, and we don't know whom to believe," one woman said. She was hoping to hear Jonathan speak out yesterday. He did not. Yesterday 500 people gathered in Abuja, the capital, to march to the National Assembly and deliver written demands for action to senior leaders. Hello. Jamal Ali United States Attorney Thomas G. Walker announced that in federal court today, Paul Fantz, 31, pled guilty before Senior United States District Judge W. Earl Britt to receipt of child pornography, in violation of Title 18, United States Code, Section 2252(a)(2), during his arraignment. On March 5, 2014, a criminal information was filed charging Fantz with the violation. According to the investigation, Fantz was seen attempting to videotape a child in the men's restroom at the North Carolina State Fair in October 2013. He was stopped and questioned by Wake County Sheriff deputies. After admitting to the violation, Fantz was placed under arrest and a search warrant was obtained for his iPhone and laptop. Forensic examination revealed at least 100 videos of boys urinating. Another 100 videos were discovered of child pornography on the laptop. At sentencing, scheduled for September 8, 2014, Fantz faces up to 20 years' imprisonment. If he has had prior convictions relating to aggravated sexual abuse; sexual abuse; abusive conduct involving a minor or ward; sex trafficking of children; or the production, receipt, possession, sale, distribution, shipment, or transportation of children pornography, the penalty increases to up to 40 years' imprisonment. Investigation of this case was conducted by the Wake County Sheriff's Office and the Federal Bureau of Investigation. Assistant United States Attorney Ethan Ontjes prosecuted the case for the United States. In every instance, there was a tipping point: in Tunisia, it was Mohamed Bouazizi's self-immolation; in New York City, it was the Wall Street bailout; in Istanbul, it was a few threatened trees in Gezi Park; in Brazil, it was a 20-cent increase in transit fare. Today, the rest of our world seems poised to erupt, with every nation near and far harboring its own Achilles heel, its own tender nerve of geopolitical vulnerability at risk of getting pricked. Thanks to corporate media, which conveniently co-opts the restless amnesia of the news cycle to distract attention from ongoing, systemic issues, this global revolutionary fervor has been presented to us as a bunch of sound and fury that rises and falls and amounts to nothing. But beneath what we've come to perceive as isolated and distinct events is a shared but neglected root cause of environmental crisis. What most people don't realize is that outbreaks of social unrest are preceded, usually, by a single pattern -- an unholy trinity of drought, low crop yield and soaring food prices. U.S. Attorney William J. Hochul, Jr. announced today that a federal jury has convicted Terry M. Dickinson, 55, of Millport, New York, of distribution of child pornography, receipt of child pornography, and possession of child pornography. The charges carry a mandatory minimum of five years in prison, a maximum of 20 years, a $500,000 fine or both. Assistant U.S. Attorney Tiffany H. Lee, who handled the prosecution of the case, stated that an undercover agent in Elmira, New York, downloaded child pornography from the defendant through a peer-to-peer software program in June and July 2010. Agents executed a search warrant at Dickinson's residence in August 2010 and seized items of digital media, including computers, thumb drives, and memory cards. A forensic analysis determined that the memory cards contained images and videos of child pornography. The search warrant led to the discovery of a notebook containing handwritten notes that appeared to detail the defendant's sexual encounters with children.



"A study has shown that a significant percentage of people convicted of child pornography crimes have in fact been involved in hands on crimes against children," said U.S. Attorney Hochul. "Were it not for the investigation into Dickinson's online activities, none of his real world actions might ever haven been known." This piece of propaganda leaves the casual observer or listener with the impression that the ice shelf will be gone in the next year or two and there is nothing we can do. It also is designed to convince the masses that this phenomena is being caused by human activity-specifically, the release of carbon dioxide from burning fossil fuels. But careful listeners and readers noted immediately that the dire prediction will not come true for at least 200 years and maybe as long as 1000 years. In layman's terms, that's a wild assed guess.

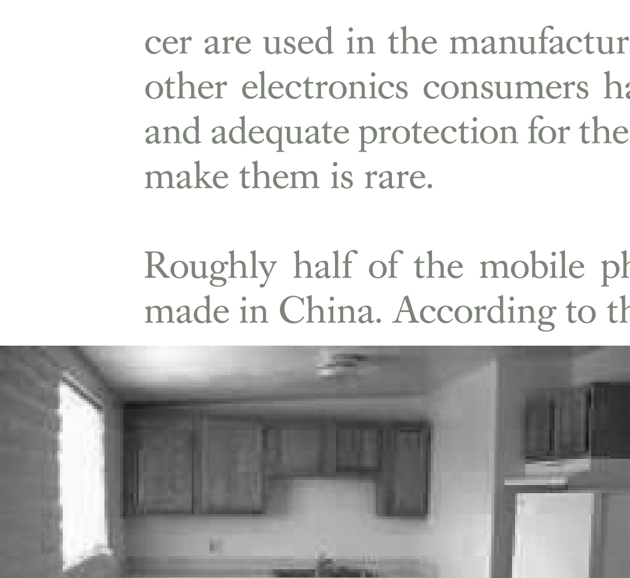
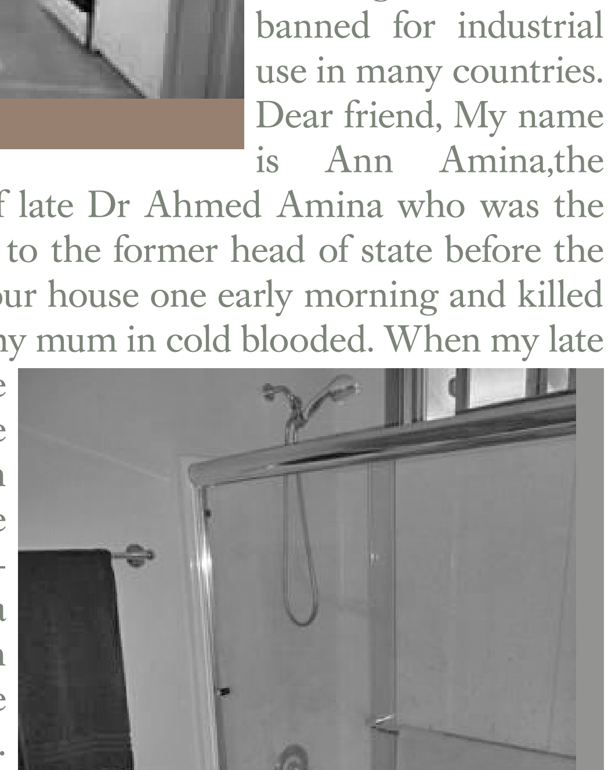
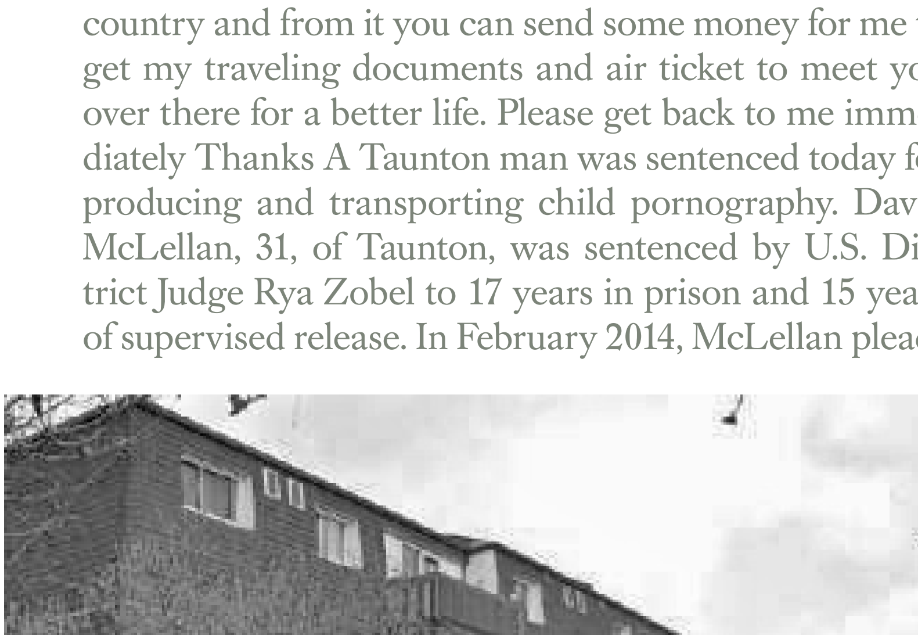
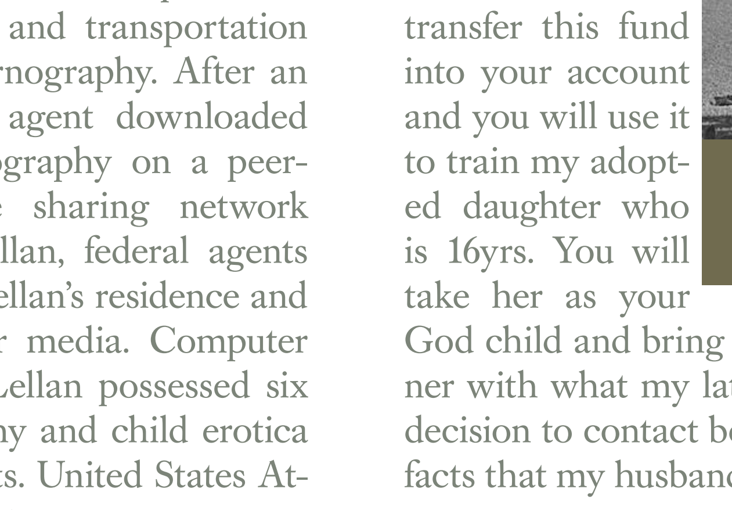
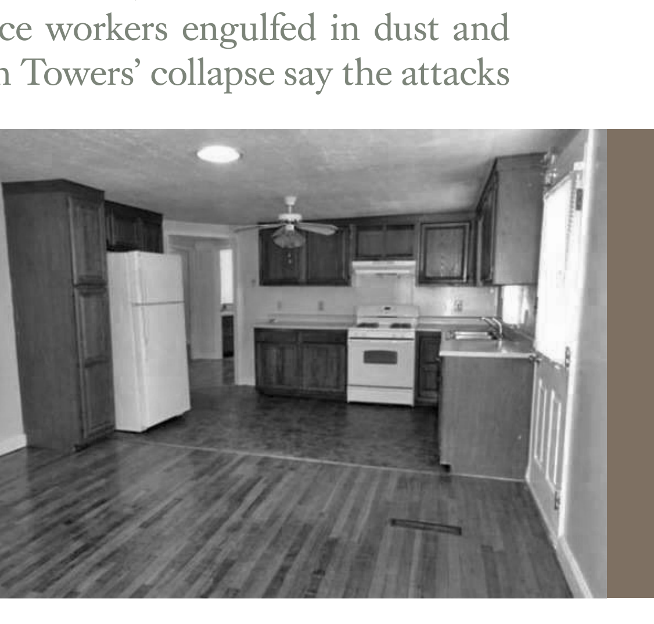
As far as perpetuating the myth that this is the result of human activity and that there is nothing we can do to stop it, the picture is more complicated. One alternative explanation points to an active underwater volcano as the culprit for warming the water current that are flowing under that glacier. We live in an age of technological immediacy that makes it easier to mislead, misinform and manipulate public opinion. By that I mean, we have immediate access to information via cell phones, radios, televisions and internet. But that does not mean that the information flooding us is accurate or truthful. The traditional means for accessing information-printed newspapers and magazines-is dying out. Al the while, the background noise is swelling to ear busting levels. The absurdities of language GeorgeOrwell warned of in Animal Farm and 1984 have become reality. Modi is a lifelong member of the Rashtriya Swayamsevak Sangh (RSS), a paramilitary Hindu nationalist organisation inspired by the fascist movements of Europe, whose founder's belief that Nazi Germany had manifested "race pride at its highest" by purging the Jews is by no means unexceptional among the votaries of Hindutva, or "Hinduness". In 1948, a former member of the RSS murdered Gandhi for being too soft on Muslims. The outfit, traditionally dominated by upper-caste Hindus, has led many vicious assaults on minorities. A notorious executioner of dozens of Muslims in Gujarat in 2002 crowed that he had slashed open with his sword the womb of a heavily pregnant woman and extracted her foetus. Modi himself described the relief camps housing tens of thousands of displaced Muslims as "child-breeding centres". "Thorium-Fueled Automobile Engine Needs Refueling Once a Century" reads the headline of an October 2013 story in an online trade publication. This fantastic promise is just one part of a modern boomlet in enthusiasm about the energy potential of thorium, a radioactive element that is far more abundant than uranium. Thorium promoters consistently extol its supposed advantages over uranium. News outlets periodically foresee the possibility of "a cheaper, more efficient, and safer form of nuclear power that produces less nuclear waste than today's uranium-based technology." Actually, though, the United States has tried to develop thorium as an energy source for some 50 years and is still struggling to deal with the legacy of those attempts. In addition to the billions of dollars it spent, mostly fruitlessly, to develop thorium fuels, the US government will have to spend billions more, at numerous federal nuclear sites, to deal with the wastes produced by those efforts. And America's energy-from-thorium quest now faces an ignominious conclusion: The US Energy Department appears to have lost track of 96 kilograms of uranium 233, a fissile material made from thorium that can be fashioned into a bomb, and is battling the state of Nevada over the proposed dumping of nearly a ton of left-over fissile materials in a government landfill, in apparent violation of international standards. An Edward VIII, 1937, Gold Proof Sovereign sold for 516,000 last week achieving a world record price for any Royal Mint Coin ever produced in the UK. It was sold as part of The Hemisphere Collection of Gold Sovereigns at A.H. Baldwin & Sons Ltd, the first complete monarchical collection of gold Sovereigns ever to be offered at auction. The King Edward VIII, Gold Proof Sovereign, dated 1937, was the only single example available to collectors anywhere in the world. Never produced for currency use, due to the controversial abdication of King Edward VIII, just 326 days after his accession, the coin originally formed part of a proof set of proposed coinage, the designs of which would have been minted and put into circulation after the King's coronation in 1937. Industrial solvents known to cause cancer are used in the manufacture of Apple products and other electronics consumers have come to depend on, and adequate protection for the millions of workers who make them is rare.

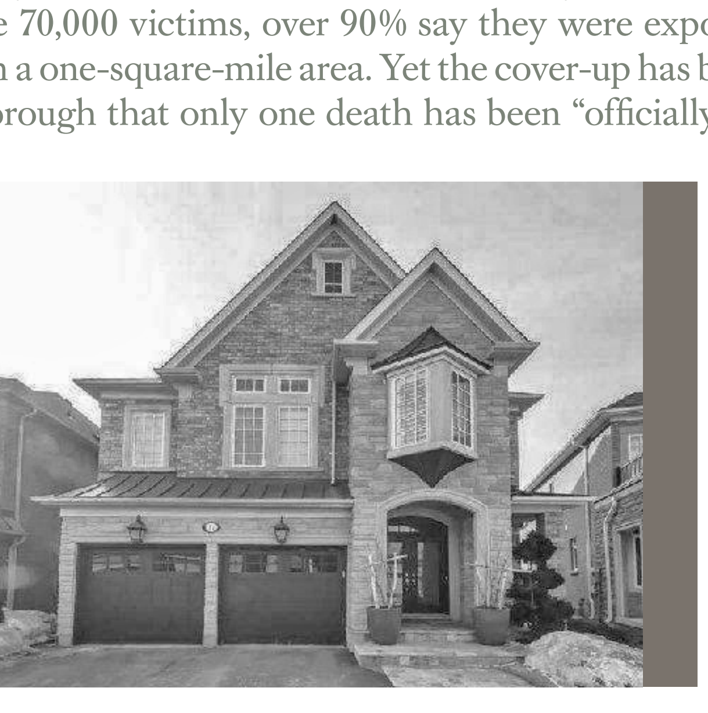


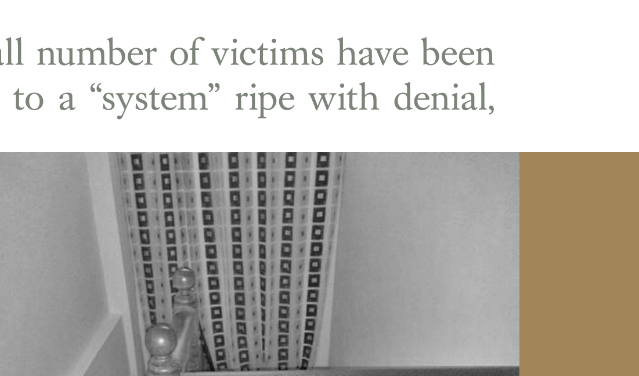




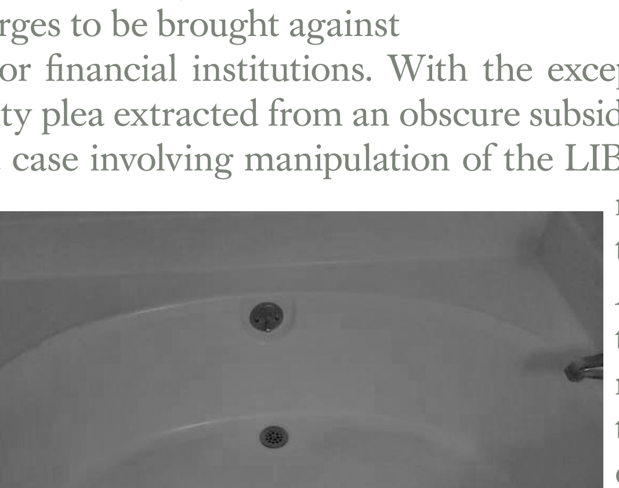


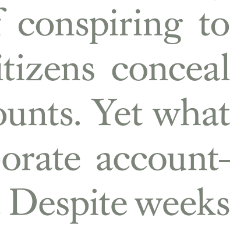




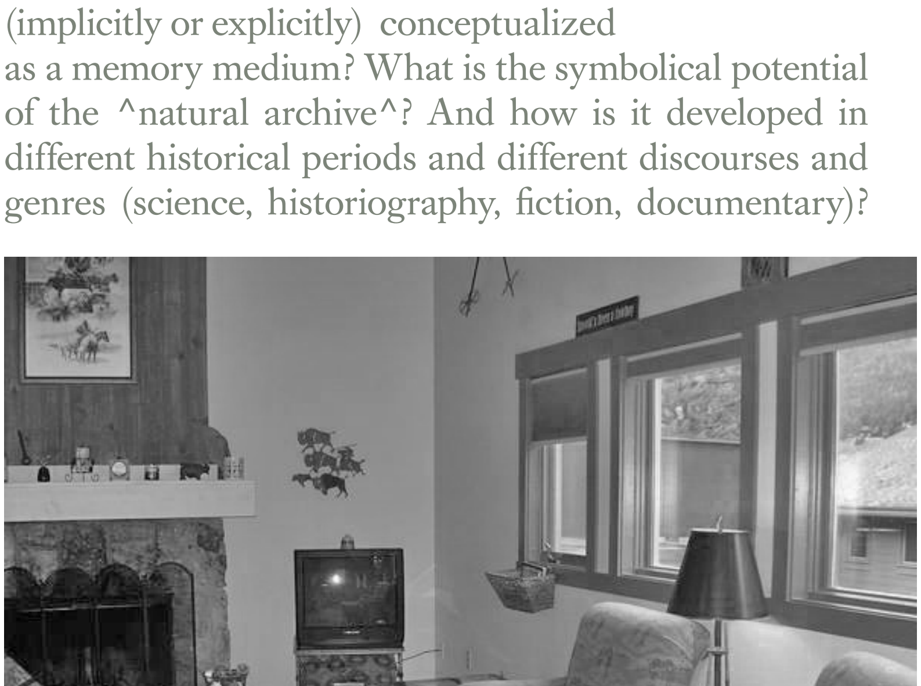


Roughly half of the mobile phones in production are made in China. According to the Chinese government's own statistics, Andrew Korfhage writes at Foreign Policy In Focus, one worker is poisoned by toxic chemicals every five hours. The chief culprit seems to be benzene, a known carcinogen that is banned for industrial use in many countries. Dear friend, My name is Ann Amina,the only daughter of late Dr Ahmed Amina who was the personal adviser to the former head of state before the rebels attacked our house one early morning and killed my father with my mum in cold blooded. When my late father was alive he deposited the sum of $6.5m (Six million,five hundred thousand dollars) in a bank here which he used my name as the next of kin. Already i have informed the bank about my intention to claim my late father's deposit and all they told me was to look for a foreign representative who will help me in the transfer This is why i contacted you,i will like you to help me transfer this money to your country and from it you can send some money for me to get my traveling documents and air ticket to meet you over there for a better life. Please get back to me immediately Thanks A Taunton man was sentenced today for producing and transporting child pornography. David McLellan, 31, of Taunton, was sentenced by U.S. District Judge Rya Zobel to 17 years in prison and 15 years of supervised release. In February 2014, McLellan pleaded guilty to sexual exploitation of children and transportation of child pornography. After an undercover agent downloaded child pornography on a peer-to-peer file sharing network from McLellan, federal agents obtained a search warrant for McLellan's residence and seized multiple items of computer media. Computer forensic examination revealed McLellan possessed six million images of child pornography and child erotica of prepubescent children and infants. United States Attorney Carmen M. The case was prosecuted by Assistant U.S. Attorney Eve A. Piemonte Stacey of Ortiz's Major Crimes Unit. This is not a change in the production pipeline - the product was always the same. The change is in the demand - the herd of independent thinkers is no longer being paid for the product (through tenures, foundations, royalties), as that particular venting method became obsolete. While telling their story, the New York Post revealed that 70,000 New Yorkers have applied for 9/11 victim compensation, most for cancers that can only be attributed to direct exposure to ionizing radiation from nuclear weapons. Officials would not give a breakdown of cancer victims, but 10,800 downtown workers make up the second-largest group of registered claimants after 39,500 Ground Zero responders. There are another 16,600 in smaller categories such as residents, students, child-care and health-care workers. Finance workers engulfed in dust and debris from the Twin Towers' collapse say the attacks -- and returning to Wall Street a week later, when officials insisted it was safe -- triggered their diseases." There is no other established cause, not "toxic soup" or irradiated drywall. In fact, the 70,000 victims represent the largest cancer cluster in history, even more victims than survivors of both Hiroshima and Nagasaki combined, the only other similar "spike" of multiple myeloma cases. Of the 70,000 victims, over 90% say they were exposed within a one-square-mile area. Yet the cover-up has been so thorough that only one death has been "officially reported" and only a small number of victims have been paid compensation due to a "system" ripe with denial, disinformation and corruption. A series of explosions tore through an open-air market in the capital of the volatile western Chinese region of Xinjiang on Thursday, killing dozens of people and wounding many more, state media reported. China's Ministry of Public Security said the attack in the heavily policed city of Urumqi was "a serious violent terrorist incident" and vowed to crack down on its perpetrators. President Xi Jinping called for the terrorists behind it to be "severely" punished. Two SUVs slammed into shoppers gathered at the market in Urumqi at 7:50 a.m. Thursday, and explosives were flung out of the vehicles, China's official news agency Xinhua said. The vehicles then exploded, according to Xinhua, which said at least 31 people were killed and more than 90 wounded.

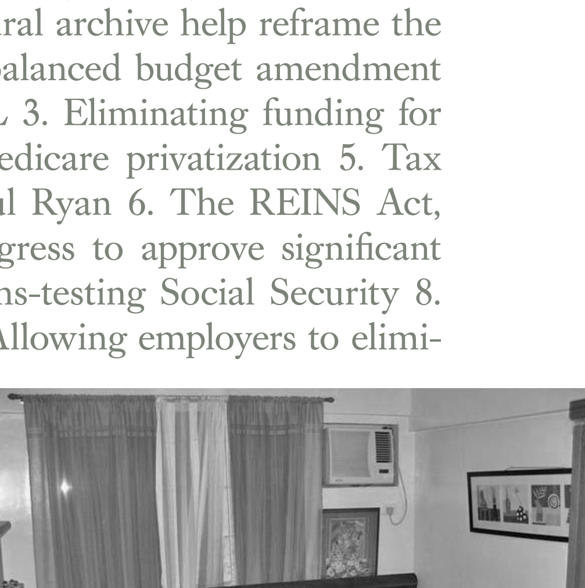


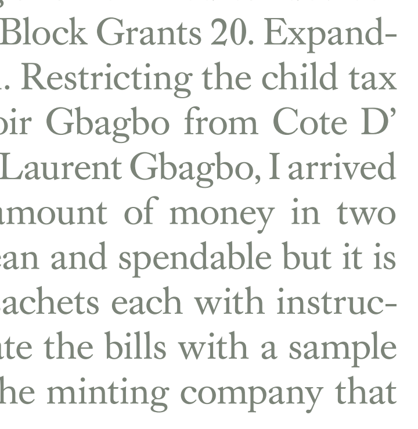


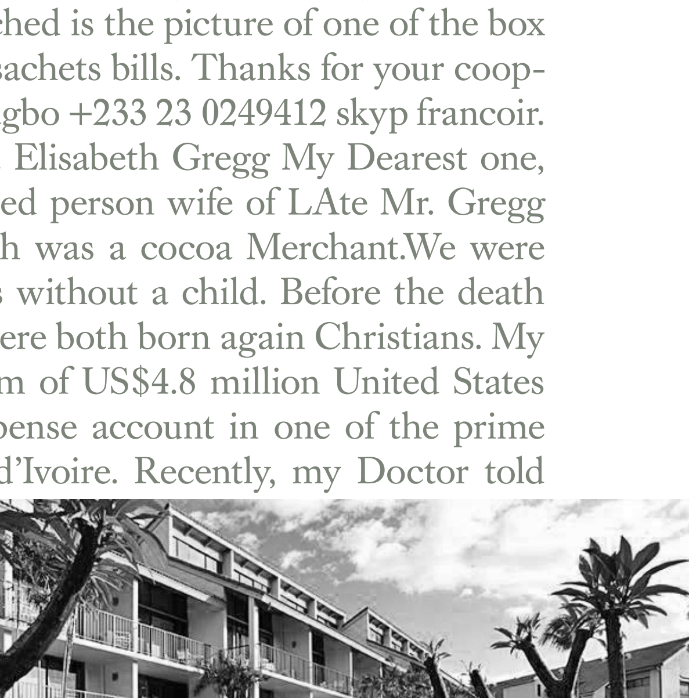
Ever since the financial meltdown, corporate critics have been clamoring for criminal charges to be brought against major financial institutions. With the exception of the guilty plea extracted from an obscure subsidiary of UBS in a case involving manipulation of the LIBOR interest rate index, the Obama Administration long resisted these calls, continuing the dubious practice of offering corporate miscreants deferred prosecution agreements and escalating but still affordable fines. The Justice Department has now given in to the pressure, forcing Credit Suisse's parent company to plead guilty to a criminal charge of conspiring to aid tax evasion by helping American citizens conceal their wealth through secret offshore accounts. Yet what should be a watershed moment in corporate accountability is starting to feel like a big letdown. Despite weeks of handwringing by corporate apologists about the risks for a bank of having a criminal conviction, along with impassioned pleas for mercy by Credit Suisse lawyers, the world has hardly come tumbling down for the Swiss financial giant since Attorney General Eric Holder announced the plea.inst this background contributions will elaborate on questions like: How and in what different ways has ice been (implicitly or explicitly) conceptualized as a memory medium? What is the symbolical potential of the ^natural archive^? And how is it developed in different historical periods and different discourses and genres (science, historiography, fiction, documentary)?



If ice is a preferred metaphor for the archival "freezing" of time, the melting of the ice may supply a metaphor for an ongoing metaphorization of the archive or encroaching entropy of memory. Finally: In what sense may the notion of the natural archive help reframe the man/culture nexus? 1. A balanced budget amendment 2. Approving Keystone XL 3. Eliminating funding for Planned Parenthood 4. Medicare privatization 5. Tax reform, as outlined by Paul Ryan 6. The money is clean and spendable but it is compacted in four $100 bills sachets each with instruction manual on how to separate the bills with a sample of little fluid and contacts of the minting company that has the fluid for separation of the bills.







I have tried the experiment and it work out successfully, I want you to assist me to invest this fund in a profitable business and I will give you 25% of the total money for your assistance. I will like to talk to you on video camera through messenger or Skype so that I will separate some of the bills with the remaining little sample fluid for your confirmation of what I just told you to be real. If you wish you may come to Ghana, so that both of us will work together on the process and also the transfer of the fund to your country for investment purposes, attached is the picture of one of the box and the compacted sachets bills. Sincerely Yours,  Mrs. Elisabeth Gregg The order of work was the order of a world.

The evidence of its ruin is paralyzing to those who dread what will come after. Today work is tied less to the economic necessity of producing goods than to the political necessity of producing producers and consumers, and of preserving by any means necessary the order of work. Producing oneself is becoming the dominant occupation of a society where production no longer has an object: like a carpenter who^s been evicted from his shop and in desperation sets about hammering and sawing himself.

All these young people smiling for their job interviews, who have their teeth whitened to give them an edge, who go to nightclubs to boost the company spirit, who learn English to advance their careers, who get divorced or married to move up the ladder, who take courses in leadership or practice “self-improvement” in order to better ^manage conflicts” -- the most intimate “self-improvement”, says one guru, “will lead to increased emotional stability, to smoother and more open relationships, to sharper intellectual focus, and therefore to a better economic performance.”

This swarming little crowd that waits impatiently to be hired while doing whatever it can to seem natural is the result of an attempt to rescue the order of work through an ethos of mobility. To be mobilized is to relate to work not as an activity but as a possibility. If the unemployed person removes his piercings, goes to the barber and keeps himself busy with “projects,” if he really works on his “employability,” as they say, it’s because this is how he demonstrates his mobility. Mobility is this slight detachment from the self, this minimal disconnection from what constitutes us, this condition of strangeness whereby the self can now be taken up as an object of work, and it now becomes possible to sell oneself rather than one’s labor power, to be remunerated not for what one does but for what one is, for our exquisite mastery of social codes, for our relational talents, for our smile and our way of presenting ourselves. This is the new standard of socialization.

It has been over a week and a half since Typhoon Haiyan slammed the coast of Samar and Leyte in the central Philippines. Changing the face of the landscape and the view on storms in this area for years to come.

The death toll at this time has now climbed to over 4,000, over 1,700 of those souls lost remain unidentified. A far cry from the number the president gave last week which was expected to be around 2,500. Many officials and people on the ground in the region continue to stick with the grave news that number of dead will continue to climb and this will likely be one of the deadliest disasters in the history of the country.

The impact of work in and near the reactors has become a rising concern. Critics have warned that there are not enough skilled technicians willing to sacrifice themselves at the plant. Tepco has worsened the situation by applying to open a number of its shut reactors elsewhere in Japan, straining its already depleted skilled workforce even further. Meanwhile, a staggering 40% rise in thyroid irregularities among young children in the area has caused a deepening concern about widespread health impacts from Fukushima’s fallout within the general public. Because these numbers have come in just two years after the disaster, the percentage of affected children is expected to continue to rise. And the worst fear of all remains unabated. At Unit Four, which apparently did not actually explode, the building’s structural integrity has been seriously undermined. Debate continues to rage over exactly how this happened. But there’s no doubt that a pool containing many tons of highly radioactive used fuel is suspended 100 feet in the air, with little left to support the structure. Should an earthquake or other trauma knock the pool to the ground, there’s a high likelihood the fuel rods could catch fire.

In such an event, the radioactive emissions could be catastrophic. Intensely lethal emissions could spew for a very long time, eventually circling the globe many times, wrecking untold havoc. The prosecutors say that Sosa, as a special forces soldier, helped to kill 160 people in the village of Dos Erres while searching for stolen weapons. The massacre took place in 1982, in the midst of a brutal civil war where 200,000 people were killed. Guatemala’s government, backed by the U.S. government during the Cold War, battled leftist groups and indigenous people and committed acts of genocide. The case against Sosa alleges that the patrol he was a part of decided to kill residents of the village after soldiers raped women and children, according to the Associated Press. U.S. Attorney Jeannie Joseph told jurors that villagers were hit over the head with a sledgehammer during the killings, and that Sosa threw a grenade and fired his rifle at people who were thrown inside a well.

Rio de Janeiro was once again racked by violent protest on Tuesday night as a teachers strike became the latest rallying point for public discontent over public services and police brutality.

Several tens of thousands joined a demonstration in support of teachers, who are opposed to a salary and benefit package proposed by Rio’s mayor, Eduardo Paes. The turnout, despite a torrential downpour, was among the biggest since a nationwide wave of protests in June that overshadowed preparations for next year’s World Cup.

Anarchist groups smashed banks and burnt a bus, while “Black Block” protesters threw firebombs at the police, who responded with teargas, rubber bullets and percussion grenades. While Liquidamber styraciflua (family: Altingingaceae) generally holds its leaves late in the season, it rarely develops strong fall color.This year, cool clear days and a good summer have left this tree with a spectacular display of purple, red and orange. Some trees however do not develop this color and usually this is due to the genetics of the particular tree.

Nearly three years ago twenty-six year old Mohamed Bouazizi had his vegetable cart confiscated by police. Bouazizi was denied an audience with local authorities when he sought to complain. Humiliated and frustrated by the dual scourges of political repression and limited economic opportunity, Bouazizi doused himself in gasoline and set himself on fire in protest.

A heritage turkey is not any particular breed, but made up of a group of breeds such as the Narragansett, Bourbon Red, Standard Bronze, Royal Palm, Slate and Jersey Buff. What distinguish these birds from the Modern Standard White Broad Breasted variety is their slower growth, smaller breasts and their ability to naturally breed. The machine was still up and running and other services on it functioning but the ftp daemon stopped responding.

I restarted the daemon after my son e-mailed that his weatherstation wasn’t updating and it resumed functioning.  It restarts when it does a log rotate to start a new log.  For some reason something failed in that process but I can’t find any indication in the logs as to what.

In every society, democratic or totalitarian, the sensible, grown-up thing to do is to commit to the long haul of sleazy conformity. Though formal hostilities with the PRC ended by the early 1980s, Matsu is still very much a frontline area. Visitors are strongly advised not to wander off paved roads when exploring the island due to the possibility of running across old unmarked minefields. It is also advisible to avoid traveling to certain sensitive areas after dark, such as coastal areas or areas near military installations. Visitors should also obey all orders given by military personnel and avoid entering or photographing sensitive areas.

At least 238 people died in a mountainous region of southwest Pakistan on Tuesday, when a powerful 7.7-magnitude earthquake struck there. The earthquake struck in Pakistan’s Balochistan region, its largest but least populated province.

The quake was felt in the Indian capital Delhi, where some buildings shook. It caused a new island to rise from the sea, just off the Pakistan’s southern coast. A new island, created in what one scientist called a “mud volcano,” has risen from the sea off the coast of Pakistan, following the September 24, 2013 earthquake there. Not surprisingly, people are already out walking on the new island. Television stations in the region were the first to report a small, mountain-like island. It is about 60 to 70 feet (18 to 21 meters) high, up to 300 feet wide and up to 120 feet long, it sits about 200 meters away from the coast. The new island is a “mud volcano.” It is apparently a jet of mud, sand and water that gushed to the sea surface following the earthquake.

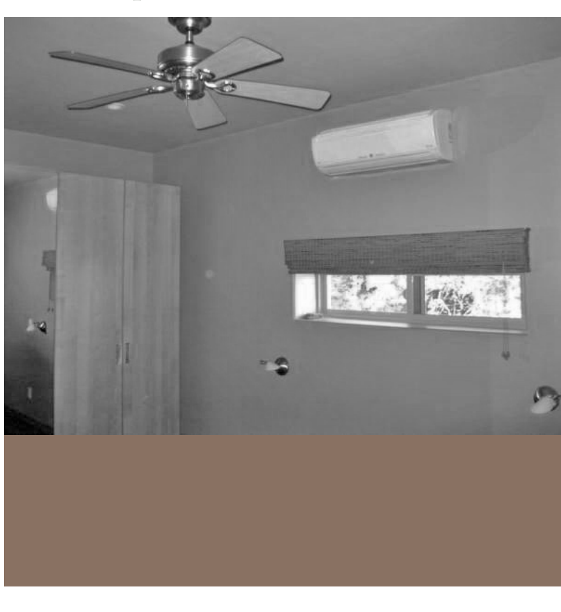
In Sudan -- the once hoped-for breadbasket of the Arab world -- deadly unrest, sparked by a hugely unpopular decision to lift fuel subsidies, has made it abundantly clear that the country is struggling to maintain its current political order. The uprising was sparked by the suspension of fuel subsidies relating to gasoline and gas canisters, but this was only the tip of the iceberg. The timing and manner the policy was implemented displayed the level of disconnect between the political elite and the impoverished masses. The suffering of the poor and vulnerable was exacerbated further by recent floods --  described by United Nations Office for the Coordination of Humanitarian Affairs in Sudan as the worst in 25 years (over 500,000 people have been affected across the country.) SANTA ROSA, Calif. - On the eighth day of mourning and mass protests, hundreds of youths, families and residents marched Wednesday evening to Santa Rosa’s central square to demand justice for the killing last week of 13-year-old Andy Lopez - shot seven times on the street by a sheriff’s deputy who mistook the boy’s air-gun for an assault rifle.



The killing has outraged Latinos and the broader community here of 160,000, located in California’s wine country one hour north of San Francisco, where thousands - many of them teenagers in middle school like Lopez - have streamed into the streets in recent days calling for new police laws and the swift punishment of officer Erick Gelhaus, an Iraq war veteran and former sergeant who was a known advocate of using deadly force in conflict situations. The government celebrates my conviction and imprisonment, hoping that it will close the door on the full story. I took responsibility for my actions, by pleading guilty, but when will the government be made to answer for its crimes? The U.S. hypes the threat of hackers in order to justify the multi billion dollar cyber security industrial complex, but it is also responsible for the same conduct it aggressively prosecutes and claims to work to prevent. The hypocrisy of “law and order” and the injustices caused by capitalism cannot be cured by institutional reform but through civil disobedience and direct action. Yes

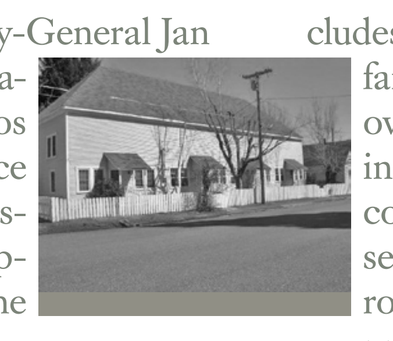
I broke the law, but I believe that sometimes laws must be broken in order to make room for change. In the immortal word of Frederick Douglas, "Power concedes nothing without a demand. It never did and it never will. Find out just what any people will quietly submit to and you have found out the exact measure of injustice and wrong which will be imposed upon them, and these will continue till they are resisted with either words or blows, or both. The limits of tyrants are prescribed by the endurance of those whom they oppress."

A situation described as a "human catastrophe of epic proportions" is underway in the Central African Republic (CAR), yet has failed to garner widespread media attention. On Monday, United Nations Deputy Secretary-General Jan Eliasson warned that the impoverished nation was "descending into complete chaos before our eyes."

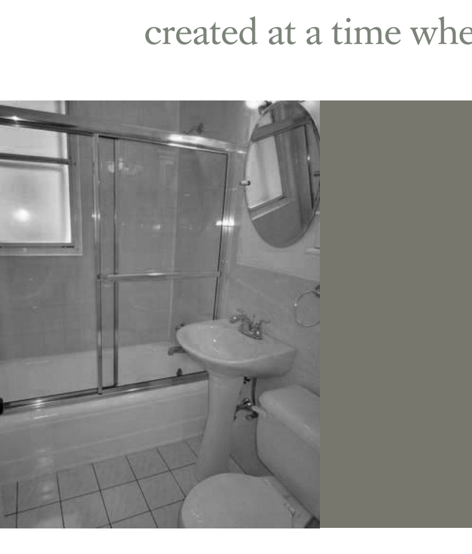


The Department of Justice (DOJ) announced a settlement on the prosecution of Duke Energy's wind developments in Wyoming in connection with the deaths of 14 Golden Eagles and 149 other protected birds, amounting to $1 million in fines and mitigation actions. This is the first prosecution of a wind company in connection with bird mortality. August 9 | Friday | 6-7:30 pm Pieces of String by Justin and Doug Kimball

For four years Justin Kimball photographed in abandoned homes, hotels, and buildings in the Northeastern United States. For much of this work, he accompanied his brother Doug, an auctioneer, into the houses of the deceased or dispersed. Photographing the smallest objects (a note, a box of hair pins, a stain on a pillow), Kimball re-imagines their existence and relationship to the absent owners. Included is a booklet of Doug Kimball's writing about his own experiences with the emotional storm that surrounds these objects, their owners, and beneficiaries. Indigenous communities have been objecting to the illegal sale of their territory to transnational companies who seek to extract profits by harnessing and privatising communally-owned water. Yet in September 2010, the Honduran National Congress awarded 41 hydroelectric dam concessions, during a time when the government of Porfirio "Pepe" Lobo's legitimacy was still questioned by the majority of Latin American governments.

On November 21, 2006, plainclothes officers Jason R. Smith, Gregg Junnier and Arthur Tesler carried out a no-knock drug raid on Johnston's Atlanta home based on bad information from an informant/marijuana dealer named Alex White. When they broke in, Johnston (who lived alone in a high-crime area of the city and kept a gun in her house for protection) assumed she was being the victim of a home invasion and fired a shot. But a lot more shooting was done by the officers: a total of 39 shots were fired, several of which hit her. And while Johnston was lying on the floor dying, Smith handcuffed her.

Through this tyrannical dispensation - created at a time when other nations were either broken or voiceless - the great warmongers of the past 60 years remain responsible for global peace. The biggest weapons traders are tasked with global disarmament. Those who trample international law control the administration of justice. Obama's audacity in trying to manufacture a case to go to war in Syria makes him a scoundrel unworthy of the Nobel Peace Prize.



Moreover, he, with the full cooperation of Turkey and Saudi Arabia, are helping fund and arm Islamic Jihadists, who are killing thousands of Syrian civilians. That makes him a war criminal. Yet, in his smug sanctimony, Obama pretends that he is fighting for what is right. Nothing to could be further from the truth.

Once the A380 touched down in Los Angeles and received her water cannon salute from the LAX fire brigade, it was our turn to try her out. We waved goodbye to the Marilyn Monroe and Frank Sinatra impersonators at the gate's red carpet and went up the air bridge to an upper deck Club World (Business Class) seat for the overnight flight to London.

While the anger is accumulating in Sudan and peaceful demonstrators are being injured and killed by the Sudanese regime forces, this comes as a natural result of years of injustices. Sudan has been exposed to the brutality of the dogmatic ideology of political Islam, and the people have been stripped of their dignity. The story here is just a tip of the iceberg. Sudanese women are the mirror of the cruelty and disparity imposed by the ruling regime. Hello , Am Diplomatic Agent CITIZEN JOHN I have been trying to reach you on your telephone about an hour now just to inform you about my successful arrival in San Diego International Airport San Diego, CA 92101 (US) with your two boxes of consignment worth $1.4 million usa dollars which I have been instructed by ups DIPLOMATIC COURIER SERVICE to be delivered to you. The Airport authority demanded for all the legal back up to prove to them that the fund is no way related with drug nor fraud money. I have presented the paper works I handed to them and they are very much pleased with the paper works I presented but the only thing that is still keeping me here is the ups bill of lading papers for airport delivery clearance which is not placed on the boxes, one of the Airport Authority has advise that we get the delivery bill of lading papers so that I can exit the airport immediately and make my delivery successful .I try to reason with them and they stated the delivery tag will cost us just few hundred Dollars only to g As I can not afford to spend any more time here due to other delivery I have to take care of BOXED SHIPMENT until it is deposited in Bank. Here are the paper works backing up the funds together with my ID CARD as I can accompany you to your bank were you will deposit the fund successfully with these paper works.

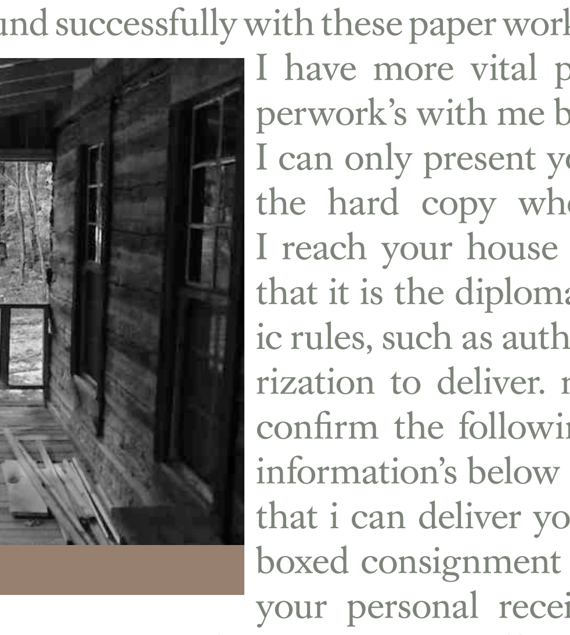
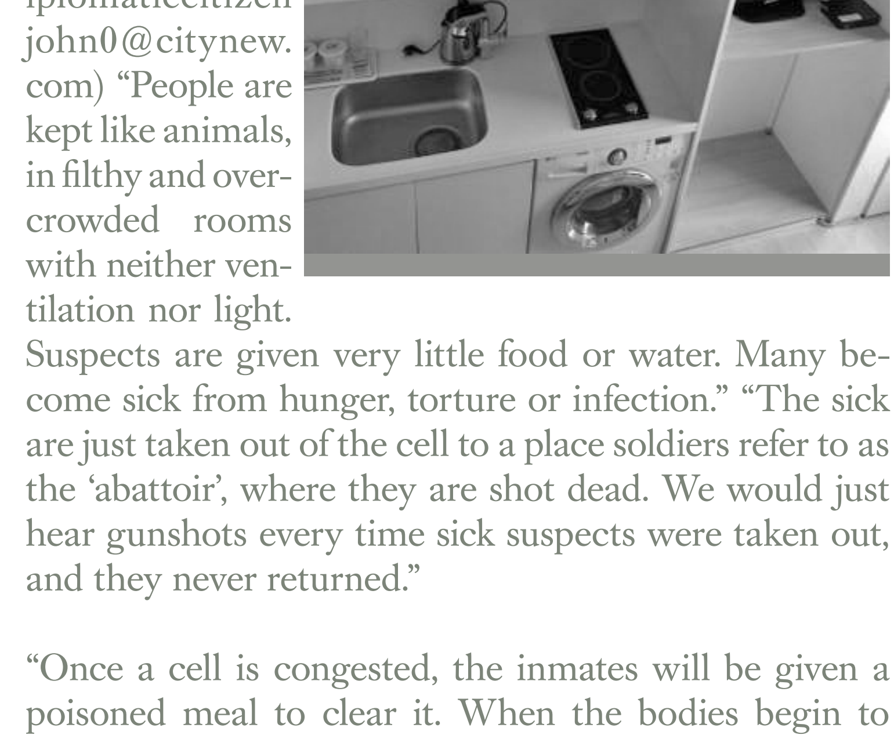
I have more vital paperwork's with me but I can only present you the hard copy when I reach your house as that it is the diplomatic rules, such as authorization to deliver. reconfirm the following information's below so that i can deliver your boxed consignment to your personal receipt today. You can direct the tag fee to our Head Office in Nigerian ups as they will get the bill of lading paperss here for you and they are entitled to receive and make any payment to foreign countries authority. DIPLOMATIC MR CITIZEN JOHN is my name Here is my cell phone to contact me here in san deigo.(858)206 4400) So you have to contact me with this email address (diplomaticcitizenjohn0@citynew.com)

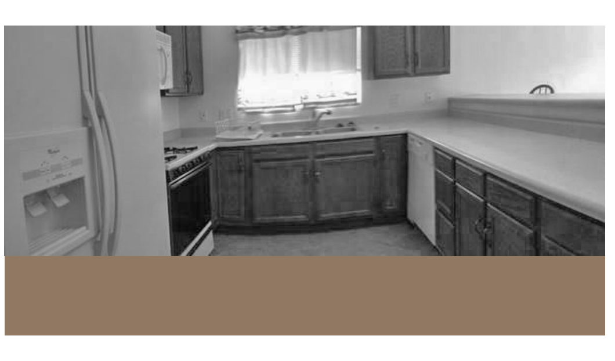


"People are kept like animals, in filthy and overcrowded rooms with neither ventilation nor light. Suspects are given very little food or water. Many become sick from hunger, torture or infection." "The sick are just taken out of the cell to a place soldiers refer to as the 'abattoir', where they are shot dead. We would just hear gunshots every time sick suspects were taken out, and they never returned."

"Once a cell is congested, the inmates will be given a poisoned meal to clear it. When the bodies begin to decompose, they call in BOSEPA [Borno State Environmental Protection Agency] sanitation trucks to pack them out of the barracks."



There are basically two categories of people who want to see Social Security cut: 1) financiers who wish to move us toward privatized retirement accounts so that they can charge us fees; and 2) rich people who do not like to pay taxes. Their main champions are conservatives at the Heritage Foundation, libertarians at the Cato Institute and Wall Street financier Pete Peterson. Heavy snow is forecast from the Tennessee Valley to western New England, with freezing rain possible across the Appalachians and western Mid-Atlantic into the interior Northeast through Wednesday. Meanwhile, heavy rainfall is forecast across parts of the Mid-Atlantic and Northeast. Covert action by definition is a CIA activity that is intended to be deniable and unattributable to the U.S. government. Covert action is considered to be an option when public disclosure of the operation would render it unfeasible, diminish its utility, or generate adverse consequences for the United States.



The history of CIA covert action, which remains obscure in large part, includes some notable successes, such as the clandestine support of Poland's Solidarity movement. But the record also includes terrifying failures, like the overthrow of Guatemala's leadership in 1954, which inaugurated decades of violent oppression in that country. Needless to say, the interventions of both coalitions of powers are driven primarily by geopolitical and mercantile interests shrouded in ideological mist. Bank of America employees regularly lied to homeowners seeking loan modifications, denied their applications for made-up reasons, and were rewarded for sending homeowners to foreclosure, according to sworn statements by former bank employees. I was inside the air conditioned house of the commander in chief. He was making himself comfortable on a lazy boy with a glass of blue label whiskey, completely satisfied with his speech. He is getting intoxicated and every now and then pinching the cheeks of the young girl who is waiting to make him dizzy with her young body. I began to realize that this was all about power, relationships with international bodies to hold on to the power as long as he and his cohorts can to enjoy the last breath of the nation. It was nothing but sacrificing the sons and daughters of the nation for their greedy needs - the sacrificing of flesh and blood for their personal well-being. It is disturbing to consider how the minds of young men are manipulated to get them to kill. But there is an even more disturbing hypothesis: war is the result of a desire on the part of a society to sacrifice its own young men.

We recast the perception of war as normative, glorious and honorable. Rather, war is about the production of corpses and mutilated bodies. While men say they go to war for honor, or territory, a paycheck, or self-defense, or empire, in fact they go to war to prove that the nation is real. In war actual human bodies are sacrificed in the name of perpetuating a magical entity, the body politic. Sacrificial acts affirm the existence of this sacred object, the nation. Entering into battle is a devotional act, with death in war the supreme act of devotion. Lincoln spoke at Gettysburg of 'the last full measure of devotion,' what we commonly call the 'supreme sacrifice.' How close are we to admitting the truth of this terrible hypothesis?"

Physicians and other licensed health professionals are force-feeding hunger strikers held prisoner at the US Naval Base at Guantanamo Bay (GTMO), Cuba. These health professionals are violating the medical ethics they swore to uphold and are complicit in torture, according to the authors of an article published in Prehospital and Disaster Medicine. Jennifer Leaning, MD, SMH, Director of the FXB Center for Health and Human Rights at Harvard University, and her Harvard colleagues, Sarah Dougherty, JD, MPH, Gregg Greenough, MD, MPH, and Frederick Burkle, MD, MPH, DTM urge the licenses of health professionals who participate in force-feeding be revoked. Leaning and her co-authors also call for the medical profession to demand changes in military medical management protocols and stronger protections for military health professionals who protest unethical orders.

The Tribunal concluded that US laws must be changed in order for FBI agents to be charged for their crimes of assault and murder on Pine Ridge Indian land in South Dakota and elsewhere. Further, the Tribunal said justice is dependent on the immediate release of Leonard Peltier. Rice is the major dietary staple for almost half of humanity, but white rice grains lack vitamin A. Research scientists Ingo Potrykus and Peter Beyer and their teams developed a rice variety whose grains accumulate -carotene. It took them, in collaboration with IRRI, 25 years to develop and test varieties that express sufficient quantities of the precursor that a few ounces of cooked rice can provide enough -carotene to eliminate the morbidity and mortality of vitamin A deficiency.. It took time, as well, to obtain the right to distribute Golden Rice seeds, which contain patented molecular constructs, free of charge to resource-poor farmers. The crisis in funding for pensions, both private and public, is a manufactured one. It's rooted in the Enron-style accounting and "something-for-nothing" financial engineering that set off the 2008 financial meltdown. Now that state and local governments are swimming in red ink because of tax cuts and the Wall Street meltdown, unions are caught flat-footed.

The acts of civil disobedience and direct action that I am being sentenced for today are in line with the principles of community and equality that have guided my life. I hacked into dozens of high profile corporations and government institutions, understanding very clearly that what I was doing was against the law, and that my actions could land me back in federal prison. But I felt that I had an obligation to use my skills to expose and confront injustice---and to bring the truth to light. Could I have achieved the same goals through legal means? I have tried everything from voting petitions to peaceful protest and have found that those in power do not want the truth to be exposed. When we speak truth to power we are ignored at best and brutally suppressed at worst. We are confronting a power structure that does not respect its own system of checks and balances, never mind the rights of it's own citizens or the international community. The town of Arniston is a small fishing community on the very southernmost coast of South Africa. Originally called Waenhuiskrans, it received its newer name after a British-owned East India trading ship called the Arniston lost its heading and ran aground off the coast in 1815. Poor people, especially those of color, are worth nothing to corporations and private contractors if they are on the street. This use of the bodies of the poor to make money for corporations fuels the system of neoslavery that defines our prison system. Michel Foucault's colorful life and hugely influential work were both struggles against limitation -- the limits of language, of social structures and stultifying historical identities. As such, he managed to provoke scholars of every possible persuasion, since he called into question all positive programs -- the ancient imperial, feudal, and liberal humanist -- while steadfastly refusing to replace them with comprehensive alternative systems. And yet systems, social institutions of power and domination, were precisely the problem in Foucault's estimation. Through his technique of raiding archives to produce an archaeology of knowledge, Foucault showed how every institution is shot through with arbitrary systemic cruelty. "Revolution is not 'showing' life to people, but making them live. A revolutionary organization must always remember that its objective is not getting its adherents to listen to convincing talks by expert leaders, but getting them to speak for themselves, in order to achieve, or at least strive toward, an equal degree of participation." - Guy Debord They still dance the traditional dances of their past: the waltz, quadrille, schottische, mazurka and polka, and, with even more enthusiasm, reggae, socca, calypso and some Colombian styles such as vallenato, salsa, merengue, and others. With Homeland Security training border guards and patrolling checkpoints in more than 100 countries, the edges of empire are getting harder to find. It isn't exactly the towering 20-foot wall that runs like a scar through significant parts of the U.S.-Mexican borderlands. Imagine instead the sort of metal police barricades you see at protests. These are unevenly lined up like so many crooked teeth on the Dominican Republic's side of the river that acts as its border with Haiti. Like dazed versions of U.S. Border Patrol agents, the armed Dominican border guards sit at their assigned posts, staring at the opposite shore. There, on Haitian territory, children splash in the water and women wash clothes on rocks. Now we need to ask ourselves, do we want to push this country towards inter-confessional war, or should people work together and build this country? Just had a call from Dennis. Julie has at most about 48 hours to live. He and his children are taking turns being by her side. She is in no pain, but her breathing is becoming difficult. The participants received instructions to teach pairs of words to the confederate. After they had read the list of words once, the teachers were to test the learner’s recall by reading one word, and asking the learner to name one of the four words associated with it. The experimenter told the participants to punish any learner mistakes by pushing a button and administering an electric shock; while they could not see the learner, participants could hear his screams. The confederate, of course, remained unharmed, and merely acted out in pain, with each mistake costing him an additional 15 volts of punishment. In case participants faltered in their scientific resolve, the experimenter was nearby to urge them, using four authoritative statements: Please continue. The experiment requires that you continue. It is absolutely essential that you continue. You have no other choice, you must go on. Wal-Mart doesn’t pay its employees enough of a wage so that they can afford to buy quality food for Thanksgiving. So one store in Cleveland had a novel idea: launch a food drive for its own employees. It’s targeted at the low-wage workers who could afford to donate food to other, even more low-wage workers.

One aid worker, who requested anonymity for fear of reprisals, recounted a dizzying litany of abuses and killings collected from civilians over recent months. “One woman came to give birth on the 10th of October. On the 11th, the Seleka came to the village and shot her dead.” Another woman’s husband “was put in a bag with a stone, tied up and thrown in the river the same day she gave birth”. Please contact me at: xrm0909 {at} gm.ail {d0t} c0m Torture, gang rape, execution style killings -- human rights groups are using the term “ethnic cleansing” to describe the brutality in Burma. Already more than 120,000 Rohingya have been forced to flee, many to makeshift camps near the border, while others have fled in boats only to drown, starve, or be shot at by coastguards from neighboring countries. Reports show that violence is escalating -- earlier this year President Thein Sein declared a state of emergency after another round of deadly attacks, and it’s just a matter of time until there is a large scale massacre. Finalists may be asked to attend an interview with the selection committee. The City will not provide compensation for proposals or to finalists to attend the interview. Any costs to the artist associated with participating in this selection process, including submission and proposal preparation and attending interviews, shall be borne by the artist. Was shooting 2 in patterns at 500 meters. Former Marine sniper, ammo never misfired or jammed. Was like being back in field again. Ammo hits hard, high velocity. At 300 meters exploded watermelons into mush, 4 rounds took practice dummy’s head off like butter. The 62 light armor went through body armor at 250 meters and kept going. Be careful with 62 and do not shoot at steel targets unless you only want to use target once. Have old box car in field; at 600 meters shot through and through and stopped in tree another 200 meters down range. this ammo fun to shoot but have a back stop. It is the planet’s leading producer of crude palm oil: 23.5 million tons of CPO produced on 7.8 million hectares of land in 2011. This massive production of palm oil--a cheap commodity crop with an unfailing growth rate on global markets -- is a leading cause of deforestation in Indonesia, and is a constant and growing threat to local communities by polluting water and soil. Subject: To share my life with a man... Hi! Do you dream about your beautiful bride? I am a sociable, cheerful and open person. I like to prove yourself gradually. I am calm, well-balanced and do not get depressed. I am ambitious woman. But most importantly my dignity as a woman is my beauty. I can speak about anything but I am also a good listener. I like sport, traveling, cooking, communication with friends. Do not try to look perfect, I need a real man. Let’s get to know eachother better? Here’s my profile http://hbzqcjremhucz.ucoz.de/ Regards. Hi there, My name is Aisha daughter of Shukri Ghanem. We fled from Libya last year following the uprising against Col Muammar Gaddafi. My father’s death is no longer news but my mother’s deteriorating health made me want to do this despite the fact that I barely know you. I believe in my late father’s philosophy: “risk many things in life; but not life itself”. I believe in taking business risk with strangers mainly to escape the spotlight and I hope you can do this for my family.

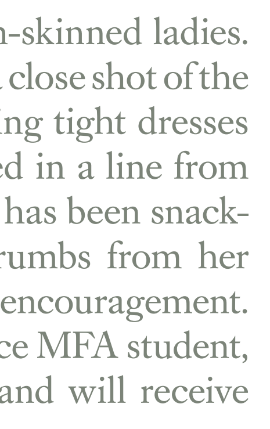
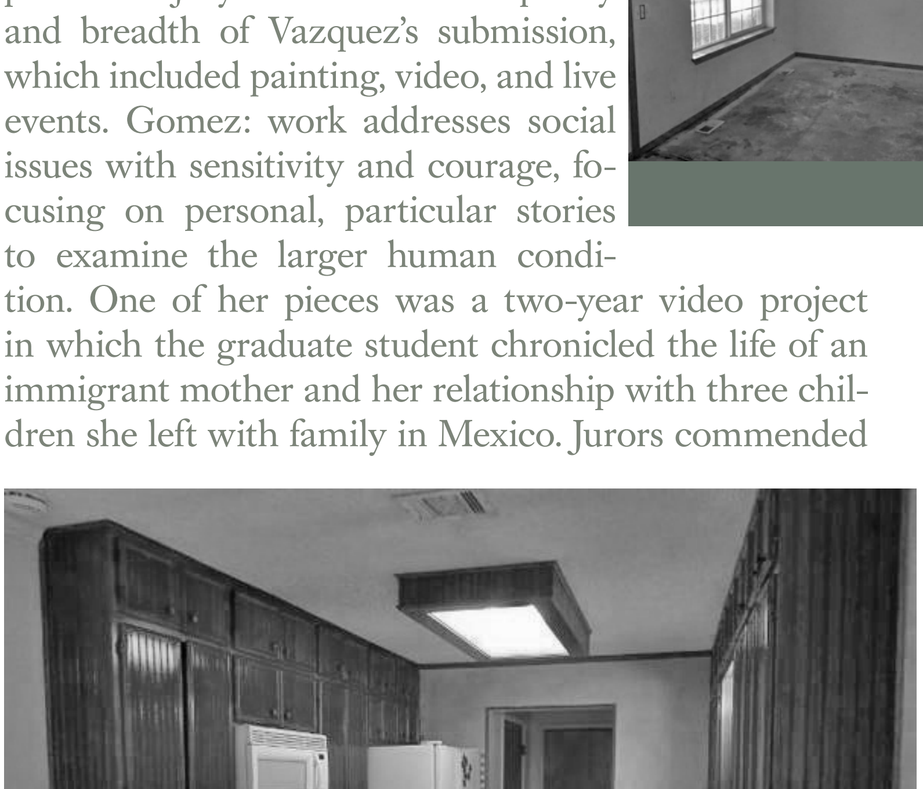
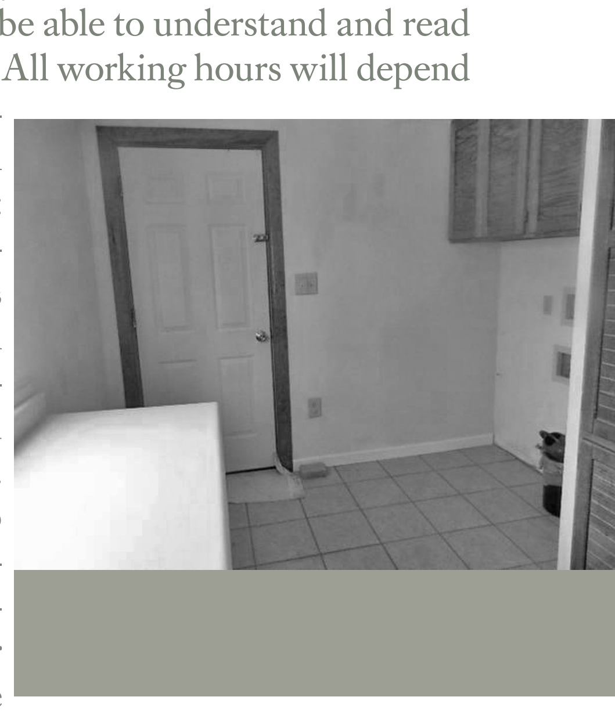
I have a rather unusual proposition having found you on the internet in desperation and I am here to surprise you with this extreme offer you can easily afford. It’s something that I believe could provide a great deal of profit to you if you give me a moment of your time. I would like to propose a joint venture with you because we are looking at investment opportunities in your area and we need a local presence to carry out our plans. Everything depends on you and ultimately how self-motivated you are. A camera has paused on three young, beautiful brown-skinned ladies. Patricia Vazquez, an Art + Social Practice MFA student, was selected as the first place winner and will receive a $5,500 cash prize. Jordan Hoagbin, a sophomore studying graphic design, will receive the $4,000 second place prize. The jury commended the quality and breadth of Vazquez’s submission, which included painting, video, and live events. Gomez: work addresses social issues with sensitivity and courage, focusing on personal, particular stories to examine the larger human condition. One of her pieces was a two-year video project in which the graduate student chronicled the life of an immigrant mother and her relationship with three children she left with family in Mexico. Jurors commended





Gomez for thoughtfully engaging with complex topics while providing participants with ways to engage with one another as fully emotional, political, and social beings. The St. Francis Xavier Memorial Church is the cathedral of Kagoshima and is located in downtown Kagoshima. It was opened in 1999 to mark the 450th anniversary of his arrival in Japan. It replaced an earlier church built to mark the 400th anniversary. Just across the street is a memorial buiot using stones from an earlier church. Unusual for japan it has a nice big pipe organ. Did you know that trees give back? Each year, a 20-inch Scotch pine reduces carbon dioxide by 376 pounds, intercepts 2,206 gallons of rainwater, lowers your electric bill by 5% and raises your property value by $49. A group of 133 developing nations have walked out of a key part of the climate talks in Warsaw, Poland, amidst a conflict over how countries who have historically emitted the most greenhouse gases should be held financially responsible for some of the damage caused by extreme weather in nations with low carbon emissions. The United States, Australia, Canada and other industrialized countries are pushing for the issue to be put off until after the 2015 climate talks.



Five bed room house on 1500 meter square plot of land for sale at Hayahulet, Addis Ababa. The house has master bed room with it’s own bathroom, four bed rooms sharing a common shower room, living and dinning room, kitchen, 8 service quarters with shower, guard house, garden, parking for 30 cars, garage for two, and two gates. The price is negotiable. This Day in History, 1984 A cloud of deadly poison gas leaked from the Union Carbide’s pesticide plant in Bhopal, India, killing over 4,000 people. Staymates were watching television in their living room as Georgia’s sick mother, Darlene, slept upstairs at 7 p.m. on Dec. 7, 2010. They suddenly heard a loud explosion and saw bright lights, “as if grenades were going off,” the complaint states. Pittsburgh Police SWAT officers wearing helmets and facemasks then broke and “stormed through” the front and back doors of the home, according to the complaint. Those officers allegedly never identified themselves, pointed assault rifles at the family, shouted obscenities and destroyed their property. Although the team purportedly sought to arrest William for quarreling with a drunk, off-duty police officer at a local veterans club early that morning, the family says that their “terrorization” continued for another 45 minutes after William was apprehended. The officers threw to the floor, kicked and handcuffed Georgeia, her stepfather and her adult son Billy. They also injured Mark’s shoulder and forced Billy to lie face down in broken glass, according to the complaint. When Georgeia pleaded repeatedly that she had young children in the house, at least one officer allegedly stated, “You think you can get one of ours, and we won't get one of yours?" The family says the police proceeded to drag Georgeia's 10-year-old son Trentino violently from the bathtub, injuring his ankles. They allegedly then made the boy stand naked at gunpoint next to his 4-year-old sister Briseis.

Officers have continued to harass and threaten the family since the raid, telling them "that's how we do things here" and that they should move out of Pittsburgh, the complaint states. The family asserts claims for violations of their Fourth and 14th amendment rights and seeks $50,000 in damages. Amnesty International and the Lagos-based Social and Economic Rights Action Center (SERAC) released a report today documenting evictions carried out in the first phase of a U.S. $200 million World Bank-funded redevelopment project.

The Citadel will be a small planned community of 3,500 - 7,000 families of patriotic Americans who voluntarily choose to live together in accordance with Thomas Jefferson's ideal of Rightful Liberty: Rightful liberty is unobstructed action according to our will within limits drawn around us by the equal rights of others.

In essence, Rightful Liberty means that neighbors keep their noses out of other neighbors' business, that neighbors live and let live. Marxists, Socialists, Liberals, and Establishment Republicans may find that living within our Citadel Community is incompatible with their existing ideology and preferred lifestyles. Our children will be educated instead of indoctrinated. Bluefin population levels have declined by nearly two thirds since the 1970s. The great corporate myth-making machine has been hard at work of late, attempting to create the false impression that US corportions are increasingly uncompetitive with their foreign rivals due to the fact they pay much higher corporate taxes in the US and abroad than their capitalist counterparts.  But that is one of the great myths perpetrated by corporate apologists, pundits and their politician friends. The myth is high in the pantheon of conscious falsifications their marketing machines feed the American public, right up there along with such other false notions that `business tax cuts create jobs', `free trade benefits everyone', `income inequality is due to a worker's own low productivity contribution', `overpaid public workers are the cause of states' budget deficits', or that `social security and medicare are going broke'.

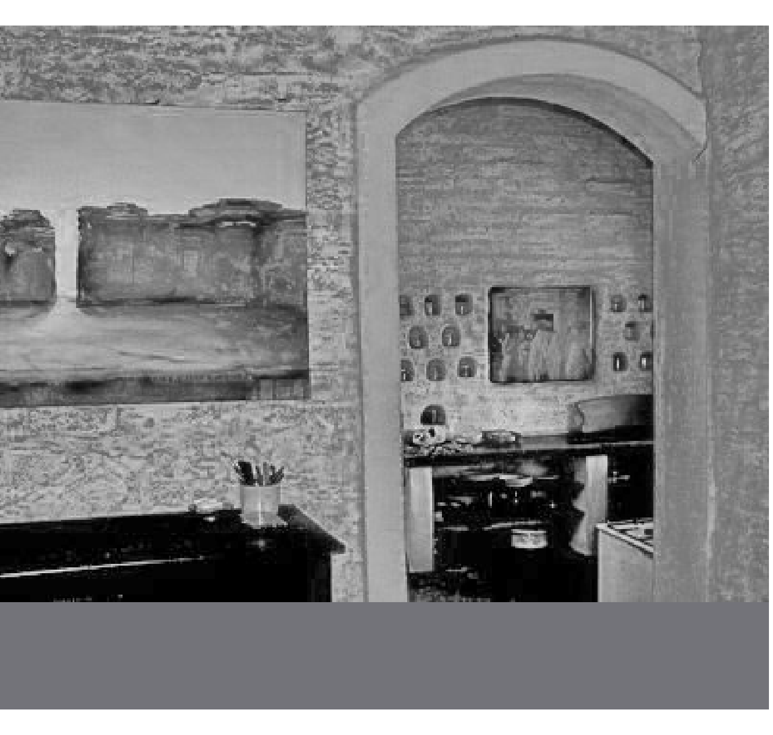
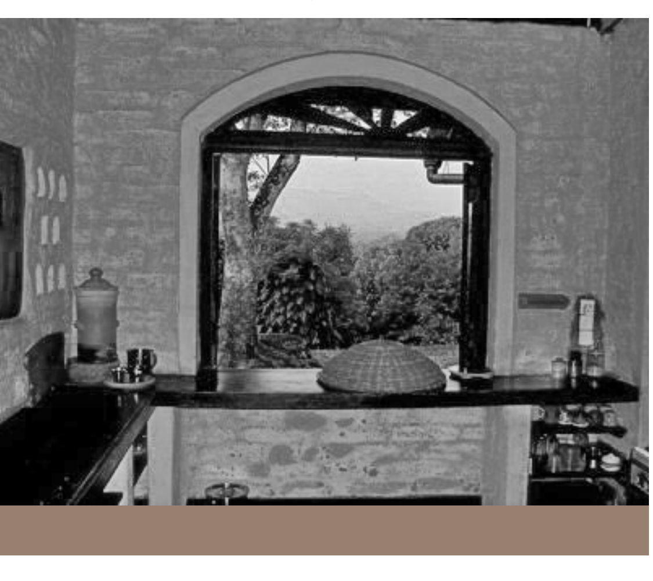
Seriously? $50,000 in a presidential campaign? Our presidential campaigns cost a billion dollars each!



$50,000 is a rounding error, not a basis for police action. Why, George W. Bush took millions from arms manufacturers and then ginned up a war for them, and the police haven't been anywhere near his house. Mercenary / Soldier of Fortune (Africa / USA) Curious if there is anybody in Africa willing to aid the Somalian / Ethiopian or otherwise African pirates in a joint effort with Mubarak / Ahmadinejad / Kony / et. al / to invest in a few (many) cargo container ships to fill with Humvees and the weapons of war, stealth that bitch into some American harbors with some sort of front / alleged business, then roll out with cargo ships of platoons of African soldiers and steadily wage a war against the domestic homeland of America.



They do take cargo ships form Iran/ Egypt/ many other places each and every day and night. Doing this under the cover of darkness could prove itself successful. America works like a game of "King of the Hill"  the citizens and average people are only willing to defend their own land. The police are under-armed compared to the African Rebels/ Soldiers, and the Military is occupied with foreign war.

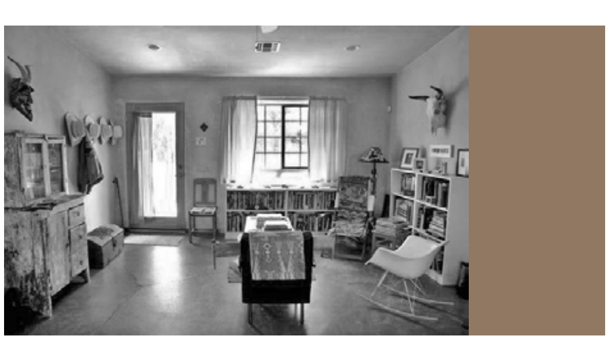
For what do we have structures of government, for what do we have institutions of state, if not to hold up all the citizenry, and especially the most vulnerable?



The Occupy movement has been systematically crushed, and the government is working to prevent such movements from rising again. The left bears fault for how weak mass movements have become in the country.

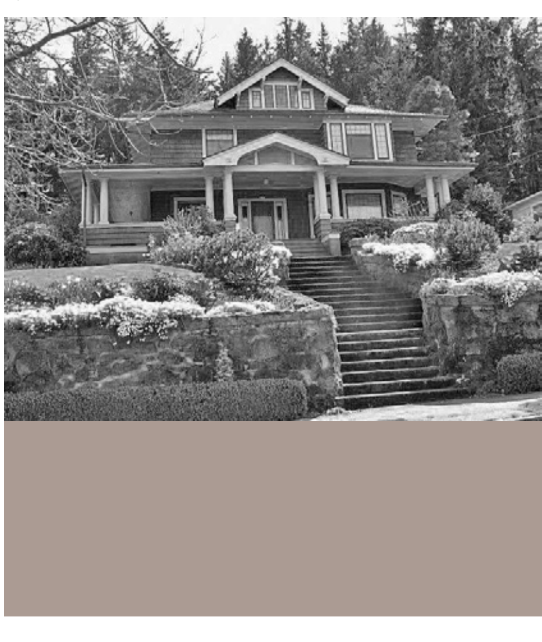
Greetings my People: I can imagine that when the founding Brothers founded the Black Panther in Oakland, CA in 1966, they could not have envisioned the mayhem, murder, hatred and the false imprisonment of our sisters, brothers by the evil empire, with hundreds who are languishing in the nation's many solitary confinement units to this day.

I can also imagine that they could not have foreseen all of the accomplishments that were made as well. The Breakfast Program, Medicare, the influence that we have had and still have on revolutionary groups around the world and a legacy that is so vibrate that only a Panther can tell its history.



Remember George W. Bush? He was the president who told the nation and world that the United States of America does not torture our prisoners.  Did I miss something last week or did I actually hear FBI director-designate James Comey admit to Senator Al Franken that prisoners at Gitmo were shackled in a standing position for seven days at a stretch to deprive them of sleep. TDCJ does things a bit different. They have what's called the "Intensive Cell Searches" wherein an inmate cell is searched every hour of the day and night subsequent to that offender assaulting a guard.

This little program goes on for months at a time right here on the Polunsky Unit. For those of us who walk out the front door, TDCJ has "Intensive Cell Moves." For my first five years of solitary confinement in the concrete box, I was required to exchange cells with another inmate at least once every 72 hours. With more than 17 years of Solitary Confinement or Administrative Segregation now done, I graduated to cell moves once every two weeks. Why is moving around a big deal? Try moving into a different cell behind a mentally ill inmate who leaves special little treasures of poop in the cell. I have Obsessive Compulsive Disorder. That's a great combination with the poop left behind.

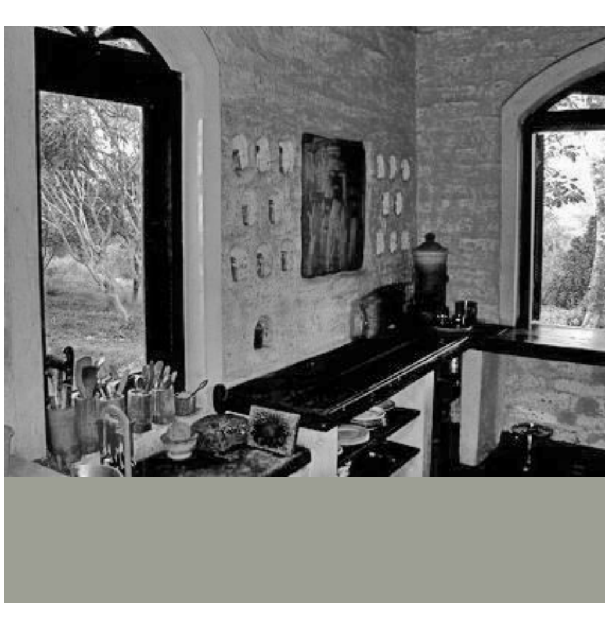
"We cannot sit and stay helpless staring at this international climate stalemate. It is now time to take action. We need an emergency climate pathway," said Yeb Sano, head of the government's delegation to the UN climate talks, in an article for the Guardian, in which he challenged climate sceptics to "get off their ivory towers" to see the impacts of climate change first-hand.



Sano, whose family comes from the devastated town of Tacloban where the typhoon Haiyan made landfall on Friday, said that countries such as the Philippines did not have time to wait for an international climate deal, which countries have agreed to reach in Paris in 2015. "What my country is going through as a result of this extreme climate event is madness," he told delagates from 190 countries, as UN climate negotiations get underway for a fortnight today in Warsaw.  "The climate crisis is madness. We can stop this madness. Right here in Warsaw. Typhoons such as Haiyan and its impacts represent a sobering reminder to the international community that we cannot afford to procrastinate on climate action... A CAT NAMED MERCY, dark comedy about the affordable care act, is about a Latina orderly at a nursing home who gets her hours cut and becomes an uninsured part-time employee who is in desperate need of an emergency operation. The 24,000-year-old remains of a young boy from the Siberian village of Malata have added a new root to the family tree of indigenous Americans. While some of the New World's native ancestry clearly traces back to east Asia, the Malata boy's genome -- the oldest known of any modern human -- shows that up to one-third of that ancestry can be traced back to Europe. The results show that people related to western Eurasians had spread further east than anyone had suspected, and lived in Siberia during the coldest parts of the last Ice Age. A hot summer preceded by a balmy spring and a beautiful and long lasting fall have been great for boating and general fun in the area.  The economy is picking up and there is a general optimism in the air.

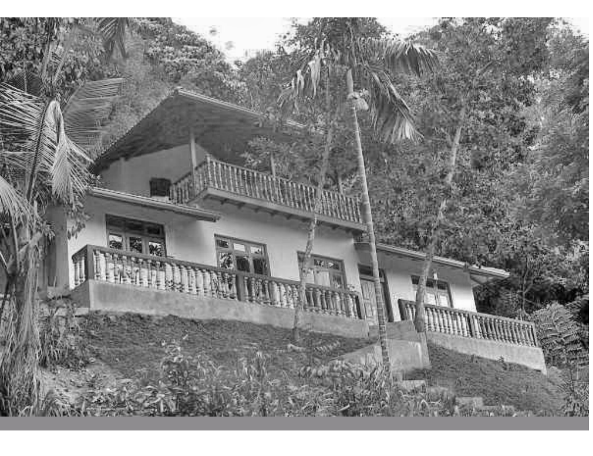
The process is gradual, insidious, lethal. It starts with financial stress in various forms, and then, according to growing evidence, leads to health problems and shorter lives. Financial stress is brought upon us by the profit motive of capitalism, which offers little incentive to feed hungry children, to treat the sick, to secure us in retirement, to provide job opportunities for middle-class Americans. Some of the steps in the process are becoming more and more familiar to us. "As more than a million troops return to civilian life, we're going to have to work even harder because the skill, dedication and courage of our troops is unmatched. And when they come home we all benefit from their efforts to build a stronger America and a brighter future for our kids.

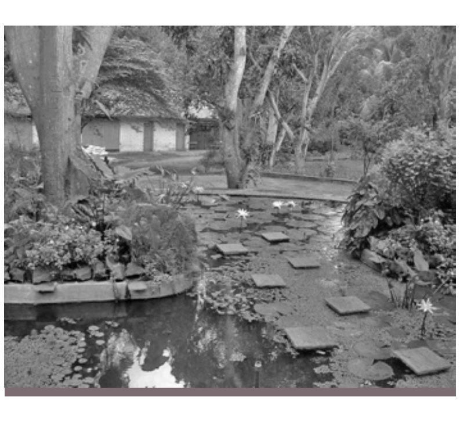
So to all our veterans on behalf of the entire nation, thank you for everything you've done and continue to do for our country. As your commander in chief I am proud of your service and grateful for your sacrifice. And as long as I'm president I will make it my mission to make sure that America has your back--not just on one day or one weekend, but 365 days per year." A storm that feeds on vertical wind shear though is one developing over Central China.

A sharp temperature contrast over the country today is fueling a strong fall storm through the early part of the coming week. Eastern China will feel the brunt of this at first with heavy rainfall and snow up to 10-15cm in the north east. South Korea will see rain showers on Monday but Tuesday lingering precip could shift over to Snow. By Monday late morning in to early afternoon Okinawa will see thunderstorm activity and rain showers as the cold front moves over the islands.



And by Monday afternoon Tokyo will see foul weather. Another big factor of this storm will be the cold air it will be ushering in later on in the week. Many people in Japan and Korea will see their first below freezing temperatures of the season. December is the time of lighted boat parades and Holiday parties all over the Delta and San Francisco Bay area. If you have a boat the parades are fun and a great way to show off your decorating creativity. All of the parades offer prizes and in some cases cash prizes. There are generally parties after the parades which are a great place to meet new people and relax with your friends. Sometimes there are good adventures associated with the parades.

One time at the Community Action Marin parade at the San Rafael Yacht Club we were heading up the canal and observed what appeared to be a huge unmarked dock in the middle of the parade route. It ended up that it was a barge participating in the parade that had lost all electrical power and was just a big dark looming object in the channel. Another time at the same parade we were riding on my friend's extensively decorated and lit up classic Stephens Yacht and one whole side of the boat went dark. Several of us were scrambling around and talking about taking the generator apart to figure out what the problem was when a high school girl aboard held up a plug and asked what it was for. When she plugged it back in the lights came back on, voila.



The collection of laws and restrictions that regulate people categorized as "sex offenders" has been punctuated by names such as Megan, Jessica and Adam. These are the names of children, all victims of heinous crimes that sparked high-profile campaigns aimed at creating "get tough on crime" legislation.

Today you can go online to your state's Megan's Law website, where all convicted sex offenders are required to register, and probably find clusters of red dots on the map of your neighborhood, each dot representing an individual convicted of a sex crime. In California, approximately one of every 375 adults is a registered sex offender. While some states have considered adopting public registries for other crimes--domestic violence, drug dealing, murder--so far sex offenders comprise the only class of criminals who are deemed to warrant this special treatment, despite scant evidence that it is effective at reducing sexual assault.

Registries are designed to protect children from "stranger danger," a largely mythical threat belied by the fact that only three percent of sexual abuse and six percent of child murders are committed by strangers.

He will likely die in prison, at age 72, without proper medical treatment, after spending nearly four decades in a 6' by 9' cell. He was placed in solitary confinement after being convicted in January 1974 of killing a prison guard at Louisiana's notorious Angola prison. Wallace is black. The guard was white, and so was each member of the southern jury that convicted him. The case against Wallace was pitifully weak when it was presented to that jury; some of the constitutional infirmities at trial were almost farcical.

But over the years the courts of that state, along with Congress and the federal courts, have constructed a mighty wall protecting that jury's verdict. Layer upon layer of procedural protections has been built around it so that today, as Wallace nears death, it is easy to see the vast gulf that exists here between law and justice.

While we have become accustomed, since the days of Joe McCarthy, to ideological witch hunts, it seems that Sartre and Camus served as test cases for the sort of thing that frequently plays out in overheated Congressional hearings and media denunciations: agents with furrowed brows and little philosophical training desperately trying to work out whether such and such abstruse academic is part of a grand conspiracy to undermine truth, justice, the American Way, etc..

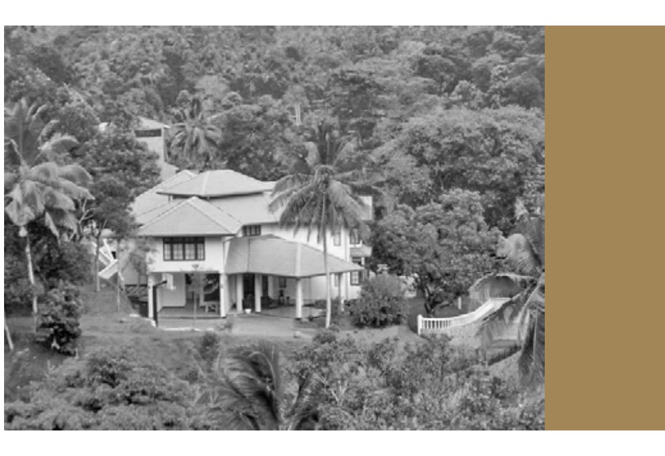
Sartre appeared early on the anti-Communist radar, though, ironically, he did so as a plant of sorts, brought over in 1945 by the Office of War Information as part of a group of journalists the United States' government hoped would put out good propaganda. In November 2001, when the CIA assassinated al-Qaeda commander Mohammed Atef with a killer drone in Kandahar, Afghanistan, the U.S. held a virtual monopoly on the technology of lethal robots. Today, more than 70 countries in the world deploy drones, 16 of them the deadly variety, and many of those drones target rural people living on the margins of the modern world.

Armed drones have been hailed as a technological breakthrough in the fight against terrorists who, in the words of President Obama, "take refuge in remote tribal regions, hide in caves and walled compounds, train in empty deserts and rugged mountains."

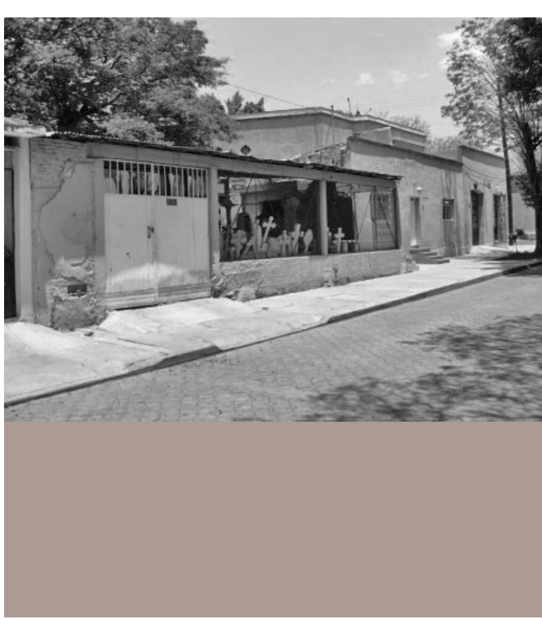
But much of the butcher's bill for the drones has fallen on people who live in those deserts and mountains, many of whom are simply in the wrong place at the wrong time or get swept into a definition of "terrorist" so broad it that embraces virtually all adult males. Houses with sturdy masonry walls and reinforced concrete roofs, looking like they could survive any tropical storm or hurricane, are sprouting up on the outskirts of this city in central Cuba, thanks to the development of local production of construction materials.

People in this neighbourhood, which is fairly new, have been improving their little houses. We support the neighbours and workers of the area, who buy the materials, and we lend them the block-making machine, said Arcides Prez, the owner of a small block-making factory. We only charge them for the electricity used, he said. Operating on the outskirts of Ciego de vila, 434 km east of Havana, this noisy artisanal factory can produce up to 1,000 cement blocks a day when supplies are available.

It also has three moulds to make difrent types of asbestos cement water tanks, all marked Arcides, C. de vila. Two cement mixers, wheelbarrows, spades and an electrically driven machine turning out two blocks a minute are operated by seven men, while two women work finishing the blocks and preparing the raw materials.



The team offers transportation of the tanks and installs them on rooftops or as cisterns. To get raw materials, Prez and his group travel to cement factories in Sancti Spritus and Santiago de Cuba, 360 and 847 km east of Havana, respectively, to pick up discarded rubble that they then mix with cement bought in state stores to make their blocks and tanks.



Housing construction is a priority in Cubas current economic reforms. Among the first changes was the sale of construction materials in national currency, diversification of supply and provision of credits and subsidies for low-income families. The authorities hope that within two years, 70 percent of the productive activity in the housing sector will be carried out by private actors, as they seek to revitalise a sector that has been centralised by the state for decades.

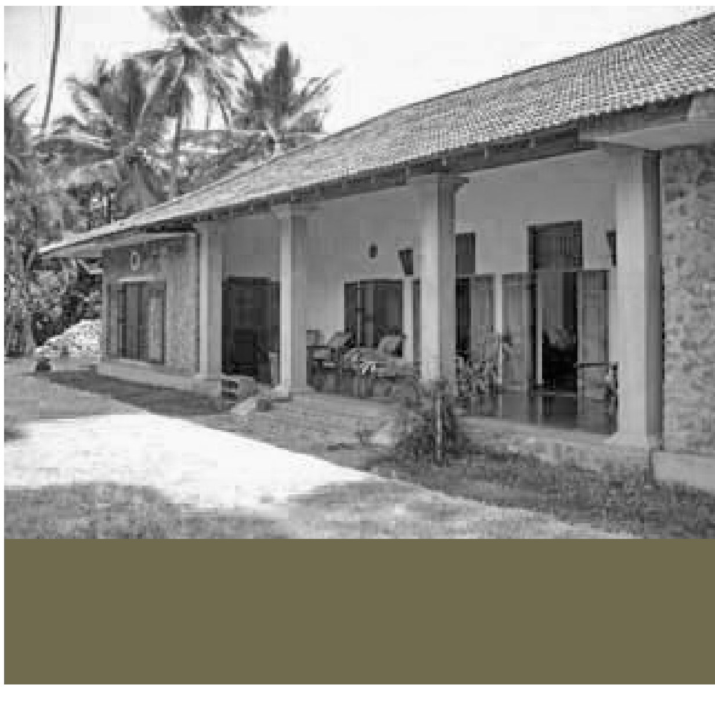
In 2002, almost 2,000 protesters, including many Aboriginal residents of Taiwan's Orchid Island and elementary and high school students staged a sit-in in front of the storage plant, calling on Taipower to remove nuclear waste from the island. They were also protesting against the government's failure to keep its pledge to withdraw 100,000 barrels of low-level nuclear waste from their isle by the end of 2002. In a bid to allay safety concerns, Taipower has pledged to repackage the waste since many of the iron barrels used for storage have become rusty from the island's salty and humid air. Taipower has for years been exploring ways to ship the nuclear waste overseas for final storage, but plans to store the waste in an abandoned North Korean coal mine have met with strong protests from neighboring South Korea and Japan due to safety and environmental concerns, while storage in Russia or China is complicated by political factors.

Taipower is "trying to convince the islanders to extend the storage arrangement for another nine years in exchange for payment of NT$200 million (about $5.7 million)" Conditions: Price includes airfare, airport tax, fuel surcharge, insurance and administrative fees. Certain selected all-inclusive low fares does not include airport taxes as such charge is collected separately by the airport authorities at point of check-in.

Price listed is correct as of date of publication and may be subject to change due to fluctuations in exchange rate, airport tax, fuel surcharge, insurance and administrative fees. Airport tax is subject to revision from time to time by the relevant airport authorities. Fares are not applicable during peak periods, demand flights and subject to seat availability. Break up the meat with a fork and scatter the garlic, onion and dry seasonings over it, then mix them into the meat with a fork or your fingers. Let the bowl of meat sit out of the icebox for ten or fifteen minutes while you set the table and make the salad.

Add the relish, capers, everything else including wine and let the meat sit, quietly marinating, for another ten minutes if possible. Now make your fat, juicy patties with your hands. The patties should be an inch thick, and soft in texture but not runny. Have the oil in your frying pan hot but not smoking when you drop in the patties and then turn the heat down and fry the burgers about four minutes. Take the pan off the burner and turn the heat high again. Flip the burgers over, put the pan back on the hot fire, then after one minute, turn the heat down again and cook another three minutes. Both sides of the burgers should be crispy brown and the middle pink and juicy. Outgoing mail should work now although there are some things wrong in the clamd.conf that I have to fix for it to be stable. There was an update to clamd today and the new version deprecates some options in the old conf file. So I am working on putting a new one together for the new version and will need to reboot the mail server later today to make sure it starts properly upon booting.

Hello, I am a Capt Melvin Scarbo Jr. commanding 2nd Battalion, 3rd Marine Regiment with the United States and Britain Coalition Force in Afghanistan. Due the decision by our Government to withdraw our troops from Afghanistan & Iraq. I have decided to quit the Marines. I am considering a possibility of doing business, which is why I'm reaching out to you. On the other hand I want to inform you that I have in my possession the sum of $15.2 Million (US Dollars) which I recovered during one of our raids on terrorists here in Afghanistan, possibly funds left by Afghan Government. I do not intend handing this money over to the Government, and I did deposit the money with a Red Cross agent informing him that we are making contact for the real owner of the money. It is under my power to approve whoever comes forth for this money. I wish to use this money to start a new life back with my family as soon as I get off this hostile desert. I want you to help me out in this deal this only opportunity of quitting the military and having a peaceful life.



Once I move this money out of here through diplomatic courier service which is the safest means. I can't fight terrorists and criminals here my entire life. I am Mr Hamzak Wadrago, the chief operating officer with my bank and I want to inform you that an amount of US$15.5 million will be moved on your name as the Foreign Business Partner to our late deceased customer. I need your help to receive this money as we shall share the money in the ratio of 60:40%. You will receive this amount through a bank wire transfer. Please send your full names, direct telephone numbers, and physical address, more details will be given upon your reply. Your quick response will be highly appreciated. Yours sincerely, Mr. Hamzak Wadrago My name is Lewis Baach, Attorney at law. Sequel to your non response to my previous email, I am re-sending this to you again thus; A deceased client of mine, that shares the same last name as yours,who died as the result of a heart-related condition on January 28th 2009. I have contacted you to assist in distributing the money left behind by my client which is lodged in the bank.

After guards tortured fellow prisoner Isaac Sanchez in the torture chair overnight and threatened several Dallas 6 members with death, inmates Andre Jacobs, Carrington Keys, Duane Peter, Derrick Stanley, Anthony Locke and Anthony Kelly decided that they did not want to suffer anymore. Covering their cell door windows with bedding, the prisoners demanded that the abuse stop, and requested access to their counselors, state police, the District Attorney and the Public Defenders Office. They had no access to telephones or computers and their incoming and outgoing mail were being destroyed to undermine their ability to expose the corruption.

Rather than investigate or attempt to resolve the issues which occurred for over a year prior to April 29, 2010, prison officials staged an armed assault against the unarmed men, who were all locked inside of their individual cells, viciously attacking them with electro-shock shields, tazers, fists, and pepper-spray. While all of the guards involved in the incident admitted that they did not suffer any injuries, members of the Dallas 6 were left bloody, naked, with burnt skin, and in pain Hundreds of Palestinian protesters set sail from Gaza on Monday in protest of the ongoing Israeli naval blockade that prevents fishing, trade, and freedom of movement for Palestinians living inside the resource-strapped territory. Protesters say the blockade -- which restricts Gazans from traveling more than six miles from shore -- stifles the local fishing industry and adds to the food crisis and resource shortage in Gaza which stems from the Israeli-imposed blockade and militarization of Gaza's borders. The movie is based on the true story of a group of celeb-obsessed teenagers who went on a crime-spree in the Hollywood Hills. The gang tracked their favorite celebrities online, learning their schedules and addresses, and then proceeded to steal more than 3 million dollars in luxury goods from the homes Paris Hilton, Orlando Bloom, Lindsay Lohan, Rachel Bilson, and others earning them the nickname, "The Bling Ring."

An old gentleman lived alone in New Jersey. He wanted to plant his annual tomato garden, but it was very difficult work, as the ground was hard. His only son, Vincent, who used to help him, was in prison. The old man wrote a letter to his son and described his predicament: Dear Vincent, I am feeling pretty sad because it looks like I won't be able to plant my tomato garden this year. I'm just getting too old to be digging up a garden plot. I know if you were here my troubles would be over. I know you would be happy to dig the plot for me, like in the old days. Love, Papa A few days later he received a letter from his son. Dear Papa, Don't dig up that garden. That's where the bodies are buried. Love, Vinnie At 4 a.m. the next morning, FBI agents and local police arrived and dug up the entire area without finding any bodies. They apologized to the old man and left. That same day the old man received another letter from his son. Dear Papa , Go ahead and plant the tomatoes now. That's the best I could do under the circumstances. Love you, Vinnie Financialization, militarization, and criminalization - forces that exacerbate the huge array of problems we face-poverty, unemployment, mass incarceration, climate destruction, gun violence, financial corruption, spying and privacy, and much more. They threaten democracy, fray our social order, worsen conditions in communities round the world, and damage our psychological health As a result, many of us are alarmed at the direction of our country, and rightly so. By many measures, our society is a depressing mess. Tens of millions are severely suffering economically, while many more are stressed out and traumatized, desperately attempting to cope with both chronic and acute problems they have never faced before.

Parking was very easy and close to the beach...$2/hour. Some shade available if you get there early. A few picnic tables available, again, if you get there early. Beach was clean, sand was white, sun was warm and bright. No waves, most shells had algae & mud stains, White sand only on beach. Once you get in water, it is very silty/muddy. We enjoyed relaxing here and would Thirty-six fishermen from Guam and Rota joined this month's derby, an annual signature event of the Northern Mariana Islands organized by the Marianas Visitors Authority and the municipality of Rota. Governments always claim security as their justification for civil liberties abuses, but that overwhelmingly the security in question is that of the state ... from its own population. America's drone campaign abroad is a far bigger threat to our security than leaked information about surveillance.

Iodine-131 can be ingested into the thyroid, where it emits beta particles (electrons) that damage tissue. A plague of damaged thyroids has already been reported among as many as 40 percent of the children in the Fukushima area. That percentage can only go higher. In developing youngsters, it can stunt both physical and mental growth. Among adults it causes a very wide range of ancillary ailments, including cancer. Cesium-137 from Fukushima has been found in fish caught as far away as California. It spreads throughout the body, but tends to accumulate in the muscles.

Strontium-90's half-life is around 29 years. It mimics calcium and goes to our bones. That these are among the isotopes being dumped into the Pacific is the worst news to come from Japan since Hiroshima and Nagasaki, whose bombings occurred 68 years ago this week, and whose fallout has been vastly exceeded at Fukushima. Indeed, Japanese experts have already estimated Fukushima's fallout at 20-30 times as high as the 1945 bombings.

The U.S. government is dead serious about climate change, but not in the way you might think. While carbon taxes and green grids remain decidedly out of reach on Capitol Hill, planners at the Pentagon have been quietly preparing to take charge of a planet shaken by climate chaos. Predicting ever more extreme weather, famine, and social collapse around the globe, high-level experts like former CIA director James Woolsey and former U.S. Army Chief of Staff Gordon Sullivan outline a chilling vision of endemic violence and "militarized adaptation" to disaster. As hunger and disease turn to conflict in the Global South, planners inside and outside the Pentagon are preparing to shut borders, control population movements, and intensify U.S. intervention abroad "We're lucky he was far enough away he was a bad shot," says one witness who escaped being shot.

The staple food in East Timor is rice. Commonly grown food crops include taro, cassava, sweet potatoes and maize. Beans, cabbage, cowpeas, onions, tomatoes and spinach are well-liked vegetables. People also rear poultry, goats and pigs. Fish forms an important part of the diet and acts as a supplement to any meal. Most traditional East Timorese recipes use a generous dose of spices. Mangoes, watermelons, papayas, bananas and coconuts are the most commonly cultivated fruits here. Carbohydrates like sago or other grains form the main dish for many a East Timorese meal.

Drones are heating up the territorial dispute between China and Japan over the Senkaku Islands. At the same time, China is expanding research and production of their own drones and Japan is considering political and military reforms. These developments could bring about a major shift in the regional strategic dynamic.

Last year more US military personnel died by their own hands than by the hands of others, and on any given night, nearly 63,000 veterans are homeless. Many veterans suffer debilitating chronic problems. Measuring just under 200 meters (about 656 feet), the twin towers of the European Central Bank's (ECB) new headquarters in Frankfurt can be seen from the city limits. From these lofty heights, Europe's financial experts will watch over the EU's common currency when the building is completed a year from now. Together with the European Union and the International Monetary Fund (IMF), they will oversee the efforts of Southern Europe's crisis-battered states to stick with their austerity schemes. And for that reason, the towers in the city's east end are also expected to become the new center of a storm of protest. The first demonstration is already scheduled for the day of the official opening, and on Sunday (24.11.2013), representatives of the Blockupy movement will plan for that event.

Botswana's Bushmen have lived on their ancestral lands since time immemorial. Ever since vast diamond deposits were discovered in the reserve, the tribe has been ruthlessly and relentlessly persecuted by their government -- evicted from their homes and forced to live in grim resettlement camps, denied water, intimidated, arrested and even tortured for subsistence hunting. Now it seems not just diamonds, but gas, is behind attempts to kick them off their land. Harassment is a daily occurrence: in a rule eerily similar to the hated Pass Laws of apartheid South Africa, the Bushmen are being forced to apply for temporary permits to visit their families. "Overstay" and they risk being arrested. And their British lawyer has been barred from the country.

As one of the featured artists in UNTITLED PROJECTS, Camilo Restrepo created an installation consisting of two in-process drawings and an elaborate system of steam-emitting tubes connected to a pressure cooker. During the run of UNTITLED, Restrepo will use steam to melt away the top layer of the drawings. In so doing, a hidden layer of imagery will be revealed that depicts, like a map, the interconnected and complicated network of Colombian narco-players. Generations more will die or live poor butchered half-lives if you fail to act Garrett, who worked as an overnight stocker, explained to his supervisor that he was striking to protest unfair labor practices and that it was illegal to fire him for participating. "We don't recognize strikers," his supervisor told him. Among the six people from his store who struck, two were fired and the other four were given warnings. (Accumulate three warnings and you're out. "Like baseball," Garrett explained.)

The expert stressed that corruption was the reason why all government owned depots and storage facilities have all been destroyed while those belonging to the private sector are very functional with one man owning about 40 per cent of storage facilities used in the industry. Hello my dear, how are you doing today? i hope all is well with you over there, please my dear i saw your contact today while browsing internet and i became interested, my name is miss Ciara. I wish to have you as a friend, if you care. I have an important reasons to request your interest for a Serious Relationship, i will be happy if you can contact me back, so that i can easily explain to you more about me and also send you my picture because I have something very Important to tell you. Your New Friend Miss Ciara Albert Woodfox and Herman Wallace were both convicted of the 1972 murder of prison guard, Brent Miller. There was no physical evidence to link them to the crime and their convictions relied primarily on the dubious testimony of a sole eyewitness who received favourable treatment in return for his testimony. Both men have robustly denied any involvement in the crime. They believe they were falsely implicated in the murder because of their political activism in prison as members of the Black Panther Party. Earlier this year a federal judge overturned the conviction. However Albert Woodfox continues to languish in prison after the state of Louisiana appealed against his release. Although the 2013 SNAP (food stamp) budget of $78 billion isless than the 2012 investment earnings of 20 wealthy Americans, SNAP is being cut while not a penny extra is taken from the multi-billionaires.

The children, who make up nearly half of the 48 million recipients, will now get $1.40 for a meal instead of $1.50. Freedom has become one of those politically charged terms that means whatever people need it to mean. There is no coherent conception of freedom, though, in which it only exists at the pleasure of the U.S. military. It's simply a non sequitur. The "freedoms" most Americans think of when they hear the term are enshrined in constitutional and statutory law. They are in no way dependent on the size, scope or even the existence of the U.S. military. BOQUILLAS, Coahuila, Mexico A formal border crossing opened a few weeks ago along the Texas-Mexico border. It links a remote Mexican village with Big Bend National Park in West Texas. Villagers on the Mexican side, in the tiny village of Boquillas, hope the crossing will bring back the tourists who sustained their economy in the past, and they're already working to rebuild the tourist infrastructure. 1. Fast-food workers in New York City are expected to walk off their jobs Thursday, one year after their first strike, joining a 100-city strike wave. Organizers say actions will take place all across the country as part of the movement for $15 an hour and the right to form a union without retaliation. The process is gradual, insidious, lethal. It starts with financial stress in various forms, and then, according to growing evidence, leads to health problems and shorter lives. Financial stress is brought upon us by the profit motive of capitalism, which offers little incentive to feed hungry children, to treat the sick, to secure us in retirement, to provide job opportunities for middle-class Americans. Some of the steps in the pro-
